Hike of 32.5 per cent now in effect

Water rate increase authorized by PUCO

By MIKE FLYNN
Record-Herald Editor

C. Everitt Robbins, manager of the Ohio Water Service Co., 149 S. Fayette St., announced today that the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio has authorized an emergency and temporary 32½ per cent increase in Washington C.H. water rates.

The rate increase becomes effective today and will be reflected on bills received by area water customers this week, Robbins said.

Robbins said that while the 32½ per cent emergency rate increase is only temporary, the prospects for approval of the permanent rate hike being requested by the company are doubtful, at least in the near future.

"The commission will act later upon our application for higher rates on permanent basis. The temporary, emergency rates will remain in effect until the commission orders a change," Robbins pointed out.

The permanent water rate, as requested by the Ohio Water Service Co., would increase another 66 per cent. The emergency rate increase authorized by the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio amounts to an 80-cent hike in the minimum water usage rate.

The minimum water usage rate will now be $3.26 for 200 cubic feet or less per month, instead of $2.46 per month.

The rate increases to $4 for the next 1,800 cubic feet per month; $4.62 for the next 2,000 cubic feet, and $5.08 for over 4,000 cubic feet per month.

The water company submitted the request for an emergency rate increase to the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio after Washington C.H. City Council members rejected the firm's request for a 50 per cent hike. The water company had proposed to City Council a two-step increase, with a 35 per cent increase immediately and an additional 15 per cent six months later.

"We were forced to ask the PUCO a few months ago to authorize a permanent increase in our rates," Robbins said. "When we applied, we also asked to be permitted to put part of the proposed increase into effect on an emergency basis. After a hearing, the commission agreed that we were faced with extraordinary circumstances and a pressing need for relief and granted our request for an emergency rate increase," the water company manager said.

"We regret having had to take action that will increase anyone's cost of living in these difficult days, however, we were pushed to the wall," Robbins said.

The last increase granted to the Ohio Water Service Co. was in 1960 and it was based on the company's operating costs at that time.

"Our rates have remained unchanged for almost 15 years. Meanwhile, all the things we have to buy and pay for have been going up, up, up in price. In spite of our intensive efforts to reduce our expenditures to the minimum consistent with rendering ample and reliable water service, we have been operating at a loss, with large cash deficits. If these were continued, they would put us out of business and imperil Washington C.H.'s water supply," Robbins commented.

The field of prospective candidates has been narrowed to "a couple of specific ones," according to City Council member Mrs. Bertha McCullough.

"I'm hoping we can get something settled within a week," Mrs. McCullough commented. "We need someone to give the city employees and the people of Washington C.H. full-time direction."

City Council members discussed a possible salary for the post during the 45-minute work session.

Wolford, who resigned after serving five years as Washington C.H.'s city manager, received $16,000 per year in the position.

Some 35 persons have filed applications for the city manager's job since Dan Wolford vacated the appointed office July 11.

Cook said he hopes a new city manager can be employed early this month in order that he may be ready to take office in October.

The Library of Congress has estimated Ford's plan to end price controls on oil would mean an increase of up to 15 cents in the price of a gallon of gasoline, raise the cost of living by nearly 2 per cent and throw 600,000 Americans out of jobs.

The Ford administration predicts that gasoline prices will rise no more than 6 cents a gallon, and inflation will increase by .8 per cent. The Agriculture Department calculates that retail food prices would rise by about .7 per cent over the next 27 months because of decontrol.

Almost immediately after Ford announced his veto of the six-month price-control bill, the debate resumed in Congress.

"If the veto is not upheld, the nation is not likely to have a comprehensive energy policy for a couple of more years," said Sen. J. Glenn Beall Jr., R-Md.

Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., called the veto inflationary and "a terrible act of irresponsibility on the part of the President."

"To sustain the veto is to chance a return to the destructive cycle of higher prices and fewer jobs," said Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., who planned to vote with Ford. "To override the veto is to fall asleep in the eye of a storm and ignore the immediate energy crisis."

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said the veto destroyed the Ford administration's credibility in its battle against inflation and recession. "By this one stroke of the pen, the President has aimed a $40-billion energy shock at the American economy, a shock the economy cannot afford to suffer."

The end result of such a move would be that U.S. oil prices would rise to the level set by the oil-exporting nations, currently about $13.50 a barrel. U.S. oil now sells for an average of $9.50.

All sides agree that such an increase in oil prices would raise the price of gasoline, food, clothing and most other goods. But since the energy battle between Congress and the White House began eight months ago, there has been little agreement on the size of the increases.

State layoffs still rising

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Twenty-four investigators will be laid off by the Bureau of Workmen's Compensation later this month as the administration of Gov. James A. Rhodes continues to chip away at the state payroll.

More than 1,100 state employees have been laid off since Rhodes took office last January. The governor ordered a 2 per cent cutback in all departments last July to compensate for a state budget which he said was underfunded.

"These layoffs are due directly to the failure of the General Assembly to simply meet the Bureau's continuation payroll," BWC Deputy Administrator Philip A. Workman said in a statement Tuesday.

The Democratic-controlled legislature, which returns to begin a special session today, is expected to fuel the growing dispute. Legislative leaders say they will ask for the appointment of a select committee to investigate the hiring and firing practices of the Rhodes administration.

The Department of Natural Resources laid off 167 employees last week and the Commerce Department dropped 27 workers, cutting its Consumer Protection Division in half.

Louisville, Boston violence declines

BOSTON (AP) — Attendance is up, arrests are down and a notable orderliness prevails around most public schools here as court-ordered citywide school desegregation proceeds.

For the third consecutive night, however, police skirmished with white crowds, mostly teen-agers, in sections of the city where antibusing sentiment runs high.

Rocks and bottles were thrown at police in the city's Charlestown section and a 75-car antibusing motorcade, banned by police, was broken up. A firebomb was found and destroyed in South Boston.

Police reported at least 18 arrests Tuesday and Tuesday night.

Mayor Kevin H. White earlier Tuesday said such nighttime incidents were "criminal, provocative, indefensible acts of hooligans and they will not be tolerated."

The second day of classes went smoothly at nearly all the city's 162 schools. "The general climate in the schools is excellent," said School Supt. Marion Fahay.

About 65 per cent of the city's 75,000 public school pupils were in class Tuesday, up from just under 59 per cent when classes began Monday. Police said eight arrests were made near the schools, most for disorderly conduct, bringing the two-day arrest total to 98.

Three hundred Charlestown mothers, many pushing baby carriages and strollers, marched through the streets Tuesday to protest forced busing, which was implemented in Charlestown this year for the first time.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Gov. Julian Carroll says he would like to relieve about 1,000 National Guardsmen "very soon" of their peacekeeping duties in Jefferson County, where they were assigned after destructive weekend anti-busing protests.

School officials reported rising attendance and relative calm Tuesday, the fourth day of court-ordered busing to integrate the merged city-county system.

Carroll, who visited members of the guard and state police he sent to restore order, said the situation "looks real good."

The governor was greeted by shouts of, "We want to go home," when he entered one room where guardsmen were standing by at the National Guard Armory.

"We'll get you home as soon as we can," Carroll said as he circulated among the men and shook some hands. "When you do get home, nobody will be gladder than I am, because I didn't want to send you here in the first place."

Carroll said he would ask the federal government to pay the costs of sending the guard and state police to Louisville. "I will personally file a claim in the United States Claims Court," he said.

The governor sent the guard to Jefferson County early Saturday morning after a night of violent demonstrations during which more than 200 persons were arrested. The arrest total grew to more than 500 during the weekend.

Greater beach dangers

The avalanche of publicity about the movie "Jaws" has fostered a certain skittishness among ocean beachgoers. Many venturing into the surf have been observed to cast apprehensive glances at those walls of green water, as if half expecting to see a great, fanged shape looming there.

The experts tend to suggest that this nervous wariness about sharks with a yen to gulp down swimmers as though they were sardines is misplaced. There are greater dangers, they agree - less dramatic and chilling, perhaps, but likelier causes of injury and death to beachgoers.

As to sharks, the statistics are comforting: reportedly there were only 22 authenticated shark bite cases in offshore waters from North Carolina to Boston between 1865 to 1962, for example, 9 of them fatal. The sting ray, it seems, causes a lot more trouble - not because he's looking for it, but because he instinctively strikes with his poisonous barbed spine when disturbed. The sting ray may cause a serious puncture wound, and as one expert put it "a massive dose of the poison will cause shock and heart failure."

So watch out for sting rays, which are much more common than sharks in shallow waters. Also jelly fish - especially the Portuguese man-of-war, whose poisonous stingers cause a painful irritation which may bring on severe shock.

Far and away the greatest danger to beachgoers is drowning. To get some idea of the relative hazard, compare the above shark-bite figures with the drowning toll for one year alone: 8,100 deaths in 1974. Besides, whereas getting hit by a shark is almost entirely a matter of chance, precautions can be taken against drowning. A healthy respect for the ocean, with due regard to undertow and tricky offshore currents and one's strength as a swimmer, does much to reduce the chances of becoming an addition to the beach fatality statistics.

THESE DAYS.... By John Chamberlain

What will happen if peace breaks out?

Washington has been Dullsville this summer, and the boys at the National Press Club have lamented it. They have come to think a Watergate scandal every year is theirs by right. What will be the fate of investigative reporting if the digging — or, to put it more accurately, the leaks — turn up nothing more exciting than trivia about the CIA, an organization that is actually feared by nobody of consequence either inside the U.S. or abroad?

Reporting if the digging — or, to put it more accurately, the leaks — turn up nothing more exciting than trivia about the CIA, an organization that is actually feared by nobody of consequence either inside the U.S. or abroad?

The fact that the Capitol Hill and White House press corps have been scratching for news should be accepted with great joy by everybody outside the District of Columbia. This does not mean that the outer world has been relieved of the many specters that it has come to take for granted. Even here, however, there are omens which should please everybody save the professionals who live by reporting the uses of the sword.

The brightest thing on the horizon is, of course, the Egyptian-Israeli interim peace agreement. This doesn't mean that Israel is out of the woods. But without active support from Egypt's President Anwar Sadat, the Syrians and the Palestine liberationists are not likely to go to war over the Golan Heights or the Jordan River's West Bank.

Henry Kissinger's triumph, which seemed wholly illusory a few weeks ago, will not last forever, but if three years of peace have been attained, it will at least permit some other things to work themselves out.

The crisis in Portugal is another thing that gives promise of fading into something less than an Apocalypse. Communist leader Alvaro Cunhal, thinking he had learned something from Chile, had, apparently, decided his party had sufficiently penetrated the armed forces to impose a proletarian dictatorship on Portugal despite the wishes of everybody from the Socialists to the rightists. Well, the military in Portugal has been considerably radicalized by the unsuccessful effort to keep colonialism going in Mozambique and Angola. But army men, though they may have absorbed Marxist thinking, have their own ideas over power.

If Portugal is to go to the left, should they be mere tools of Communist Party functionaries? The colonels now rule in Peru without benefit of Moscow. Maybe Portugal will be lucky enough to get a coalition government with the Socialists and other moderate parties having something to say. But if it must be dictatorship in Portugal, it begins to look as though the army, not the Kremlin, will have first crack at it.

The news from Portuguese Angola is, of course, foreboding. But the decision of South African Prime Minister John Vorster to press for a southern African "detent" has had its effect. True enough, the recent conference at the Zambezi River between the Rhodesian whites and the supporters of black majority rule came to nothing. But the important thing is that Zambia's President Kenneth Kaunda, speaking for the more responsible blacks, and South Africa's Vorster are, like Henry Kissinger, committed to a second try.

The truth is that Zambia and Malawi, two landed-locked black countries, are in no position to sit by while chaos takes over in Rhodesia. With Portuguese Angola being torn to pieces by three rival black factions, and with Mozambique in turmoil, Zambia can't get its copper easily to the world. Like Zaire, Zambia has had to ship its copper through Rhodesia and South Africa. Malawi has also been dependent on South African rail links.

South Africa, which is committed to solving its "race" problem by spinning off a whole patchwork quilt of self-governing black enclaves, desperately wants a Rhodesian-Zambian "detent" in order to gain time for its own purposes. So Vorster has practically told Prime Minister Ian Smith of Rhodesia that he must work out some compromise with the black Bishop Abel Muzorewa. And Zambia's Kaunda has been in Vorster's corner.

The yeoman for peace has not had much encouragement in recent years. But it is growing stronger in unlikely places. If the Middle East and Portugal and southern Africa can all manage to sidestep crisis, even the extremists in the talk shop of the UN may be prevailed upon to pipe down.

It won't be good for journalists who batton on trouble. But there is never a news vacuum, and if the world at large moves toward peace it could be a great day for the renascence of local at-home reporting.

Controlling board clarified

By TOM DIEMER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The relatively obscure State Controlling Board is one of the most important but least understood arms of state government.

In recent weeks, the watchdog finance panel has emerged as a vehicle of partisan legislative intent on fiscal matters for the Democratic-controlled General Assembly.

State controllers oversee an emergency fund, currently about $18.8 million, which is available for special nonbudgeted appropriations to state agencies. They also must approve transfers of funds within state departments and waivers of competitive bidding for agencies entering into contracts with private interests.

"This is the most important part of the legislature," says House Finance Chairman Myrl H. Shoemaker, D-88 Bournerville, a leading man in the Democratic push to broaden the board's role in state government.

Gov. James A. Rhodes' sole representative on the panel sees it in a different light.

"It perverts the separation of powers," says Robert F. Howarth of the budget and management office. "It just usurps so much power from the executive branch of government."

Until this year, authority for the controlling board had always been enacted as part of the two-year state budget — it had never existed as a permanent entity.

Democrats wrote broad new authority into the 1975-77 state budget that would have allowed controllers to set their own agenda and bypass the budget office. The effect would have been to give the legislature unprecedented power over state departments, traditionally the domain of the executive branch.

Rhodes, of course, vetoed the language, but eventually agreed to a separate compromise bill after Democrats insisted he had inadvertently nullified authority for the board to meet for 90 days.

The compromise established the board in permanent law and gave controllers the right to initiate requests for executive office-holders, such as the attorney general, auditor or secretary of state.

It also gave the board the right to modify dollar amounts in requests rather than act on the specified appropriation. That power was used dramatically recently when Democratic members voted to reduce a $90,000 request from the administrative services department to a mere $250,000.

The Democrats have also attempted to initiate a funding request for the tax department, a nonexecutive division, and went so far as to overturn Howarth's ruling that their motion was out of order.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 72-year-old man. Two weeks ago when I went to my son's house, his wife greeted me at the door topless!

She said my son was not home, and she stood there smiling, then asked me to come in and have a cup of coffee. I didn't know what to do, so I just kept looking her in the face and told her I just remembered I had to meet a fellow in a few minutes. Then, I left fast.

I said nothing about this to my son or anybody else, but yesterday my son asked me to meet him at his house.

When I got there, his wife greeted me at the door with absolutely nothing on! I told her I left some tools in my car and then I got into my car and drove straight home.

DAMAGE SUIT

John and Rosemary Dilley, 836 Maple St., have filed suit in Common Pleas Court seeking $70,000 damages for injuries from an automobile accident March 26, 1975. Named as defendants in the suit are John Mayer, Rotary Club Tuesday in the Country Club.

Hartley, publisher of a number of newspapers in the central Ohio area including the Greenfield Times and the Madison Press in London, shared with Rotarians a five-week tour he made last spring of South America.

Hartley, who hosted a student from Thailand in his Columbus home last year, spent time with Victor (Tite) Allendes of Chile and a number of others AFS students in South America. Allendes was an exchange student in Reynoldsburg recently.

While in the South American countries, Hartley said he experienced a wide range of lifestyles while visiting with the former AFS students. Some of the homes Hartley visited had no indoor plumbing, but "all of them had hearts of gold," he commented.

According to Hartley, there are only three nations in South America without dictators, but he found a great amount of friendliness toward America and a great desire by the younger South Americans for freedom. He said there is presently a strong undercurrent for freedom in the various countries which will soon manifest itself and result in a change.

In Bolivia, Hartley spent 10 days in Methodist church mission with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Henry. Henry, who has an extensive background in agronomy, is helping the Bolivians raise crops in addition to their standards of living.

He said there are many other denominations working in South America missions.

Hartley also commented on the foster parents programs under way in South America. He has had a long interest in the foster parent program and for a number of years has supported two children in the Philippines for a cost of only $192 per year.

The meeting was conducted by club president William E. Williams and the program was arranged by the Rev. Mark Dove.

During the meeting, Williams announced that employees of the Country Club will be vacationing at the time of the Rotary Club's next regular meeting. The meeting site will be switched to the Sam Marting lodge, off CCC Highway-W.

Visiting Rotarians were Art Dick of Mount Sterling, Darrell French of Wilmington, George Hamrick of Circleville, Dr. Walter Felson of Greenfield, and Forrest Tucker of Wilmington. Guests were Fred Erxlaban with Don Bailey, Harold Evans with Bill Pool, Dr. Ching Hung with Rev. Dove, Dr. James McCracken with Paul Crosby, Don Hartley with Al Heer, and Bob Lawrence and Carl Pittick with Clarence Cooper. Jay Crumby of Miami Trace High School was a student guest.

Beer proving highly popular

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Barriers and distributors in the Cleveland area agree that beer, traditionally the working man's drink, is more popular than ever.

William Eaton, sales manager of Knall Beverage Inc., said his beer sales have gone up about 25 per cent in the last two years.

"Our best seller today is the 12-pack carryout," he said. "You can buy it for $3.35. Five years ago it cost $2.50."

"That's not much of a rise when you consider how all other prices have jumped."

"I think people are going more for this carryout pack because they're entertaining more at home. That's where the recession comes in."

He said he feels that more young people are drinking beer "because the popularity of marijuana has tapered off."

Walter Pisorn, part owner of the Harbor Inn in the Flats, says his beer sales are up "about 20 per cent in the last six months."

"Two years ago I used to sell 15 cases of Strohs a week. Now I sell 30. And Rolling Rock went from 10 cases a week to 25 cases."

"My imported beer sales really jumped lately, by about 50 per cent."

Pisorn has no idea why beer drinking has boomed but says he doesn't think

"it has anything to do with the recession. When almost everybody around here was out of work a few months ago we had more business than ever before."

"The guys said they didn't have anything else to do."

A bartender at the Keg & Quarter, where whisky is still the main staple, attributed the beer boom to tighter money. "A lot of people don't have the buck and a half for a drink anymore," he said. "They'd rather have two beers for $1.70."

In the last five months, he said, sales of Budweiser have risen from about 10 cases a week to 16.

Thomas Caioto, vice president at John's Beverage Distributing Co. of Maple Heights, said sales of Genesee beer, his big brand, are up 20 per cent.

"I attribute a lot of the increase to the cost of pop," he said. "Pop has gone crazy. You can buy a case of beer with the throwaway bottles for about the same price as a case of pop."

DRYING OFFERS ANOTHER WAY TO PRESERVE FOODS

Back a generation or two before freezing became popular, drying was a favorite way to preserve fruits and vegetables for use during the winter months. It was a way of dehydrating foods known long before commercially dehydrated foods became generally available.

Even today, some homemakers like to dry some of their fruits and vegetables instead of canning or freezing them, perhaps because they like them dried or they have a shortage of canning lids or freezer space. Regardless of the reason, here are some pointers on drying foods from Evelyn Gray, Extension nutritionist at the Ohio State University.

Choose for drying fruits and vegetables that are fresh, ripe, and sound — just right for table use. Decay on one slice of apple or mold on one bean may give bad flavor to a tray full.

Wash food well; get off every trace of dirt, spray or insecticide.

You can buy trays or make them. If trays have a wire surface such as oven racks, cover with cotton netting so food won't stick, and so shredded or tiny pieces won't slip through. Metal trays cannot be used in sulfurizing.

Preheat oven 15 minutes before drying time. Set regulator at 150, 200, or 250 degrees F.

Set one oven rack about 3-inches from the oven floor and the other rack, if there are two, just far enough above for two trays to be stacked between. Don't turn on the top unit in an electric oven. If necessary, remove it.

If it's an electric oven, keep the door closed while it warms. If it's a gas oven, open at the top about 8 inches while it preheats. Spread food evenly, 1 to 2 pounds to each tray. Lighter loads dry faster. While drying, the temperature should stay about 150 degrees F. If you can't keep oven heat down to 150 degrees, open the door a little wider.

Temperature and air flow are not the same everywhere in an oven. Trays nearest the oven ceiling and floor dry fastest. About every half hour, take each stack out. If food is more than one layer deep on a tray, stir or turn pieces so they can dry evenly. Every hour or two, reverse trays in each stack, making upper tray lower. Most vegetables takes 4 to 12 hours to dry; fruits, 6 hours or longer.

When food seems done, take a sample out; cool it. Test according to the dry table.

Food that overheats near the end of drying will scorch easily. If pieces around tray edges dry first, take them right out. When the rest of the food meets dry-enough test, turn off heat.

Cool the food, then package at once. Fill containers as tightly as possible without crushing the food. Glass jars, the sort used in home canning, are especially good for dried foods. Fruits well dried will keep a year or longer. Dried food is best soon after it is opened.

Apples and other light-colored fruits tend to darken in drying and storage. Working indoors, soak fruit 15 minutes in a solution of 3½ tablespoons potassium metabisulfite or sodium sulfite to 1 gallon water. If you can't buy either of these locally, a druggist may order them for you. Don't be concerned if sulfured food has strong odor or taste when dried. The taste disappears during cooking.

Store in dry, cool place to hold food value and flavor. Dark storage helps dried food keep its color and flavor. Examine dried food in storage occasionally. If you find signs of moisture, heat the food again to 150 degrees F. for 15 minutes and repackage.

Before you begin drying food, you should know: (1) Oven drying is small-scale drying. An oven can take 4 to 8 pounds — preferably 6 — of a prepared fruit or vegetable at one drying load. It takes most of the day for the load to dry. (2) Oven drying is a watchman's job. Never go off and leave food drying in an oven. If trays should catch fire, turn off the heat and close the oven door.

The following foods, preparation for drying and dryness test are as follows:

APPLES — Pare, core and cut in ¼ inch slices or rings. Sulfur outdoors 30 minutes, or dip in solution. Spread not more than ½ inch deep on trays — overlap rings. — Pliable, springy feel creamy white.

PEACHES — Peel if desired. Cut in halves, remove pits. Sulfur outdoors, peeled 30 minutes, unpeeled 2 to 3 hours, or dip in solution, or precook. Dry pit side up. — Pliable and leathery.

PLUMS — Same for prunes. Use freestone kinds. Sulfuring 20 to 25 minutes helps them to keep better. — Pliable and leathery.

BEANS, SNAP — Trim and slice lengthwise or cut in 1-inch pieces. Steam about 20 minutes or until tender but firm. Spread about ½ inch deep on rays. — Brittle, dark green to brownish.

CARROTS — Steam whole about 20 minutes, or until tender but firm. Scrape or peel. Slice crosswise ½ inch thick or dice in ¼ inch cubes. Or shred before steaming. Spread not more than ½ inch deep on trays. — Very brittle, deep orange.

CORN — Husk, trim. Steam on cob until the milk is set, about 15 minutes. Cut from the cob. Spread one-half inch deep. — Shatters when hit with a hammer.

ONIONS — Peel, slice into ⅛ inch rings. Steam 5 to 10 minutes. If dried for seasoning, do not steam. (Onions require temperature not above 135 deg. F.) — Very crisp.

SQUASH, SUMMER AND ZUCCHINI — Trim, slice ¼ inch thick without peeling, steam 6 to 8 minutes or until just tender. Spread thinly and evenly on tray. — Leathery to brittle yellow.

For further information about drying foods, call your County Extension Service Office at 335-1150.

MRS. ROBERTS OLINGER

Former Fayette County resident married in Xenia church

Miss Mary Elizabeth Kratzer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Roy Kratzer of 336 Port William Rd., and Robert George Olinger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Olinger of 2527 Ohio Rt. 134, Wilmington, former residents of Washington C.H., were married Saturday afternoon in the North Side Christian Church in Xenia. The bridegroom is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Charles V. Sexton, 905 N. North St.

made by her mother, styled like the attendants. She, too, carried a basket of flowers like the attendants.

Dave Ohler of Montana, served as best man. Seating the wedding guests were Patrick Gorman and Rod Johnson, both of Columbus. Brian Kratzer of Franklin, Pa., nephew of the bride, was the ringbearer.

The bride's mother chose for the wedding a long light peach polyester knit gown with long sleeves and her corsage was of gold and bronze mums. The groom's mother wore a long bright green shirt-styled dress with long sleeves and a corsage of yellow carnations.

The reception followed at the church. The serving table was covered with a white lace linen cloth with orange underlay. A nine-candelabra with orange candles graced one end of the table and the punchbowl at the other.

The cake table was decorated with the same decor and the five-tiered wedding cake was topped with orange sweetheart roses.

Assisting were Mrs. Howard Hill Jr. and Mrs. Kenneth Miller, sisters of the bride, and Mrs. Dennis Atley of Xenia, Mrs. David Glenn of Columbus, sisters of the groom, Mrs. Paul Sams of Sardinia and Mrs. Ray Jackson of West Mansfield, aunts of the bride. Mrs. Kenneth Kratzer, sister-in-law of the bride, presided at the guest book. Miss Susan Kratzer and Miss Dianne nice of the bride, gave out the rice baskets.

The new Mrs. Olinger was wearing a sheer floral autumn colored dress and jacket ensemble with heath blue flounced skirt and a tangerine carnation corsage when the couple left for Mackinac Island. Upon their return, they will reside in Columbus at the Bramblewood Apartments.

Mrs. Olinger is employed as a teller at the Ohio National Bank in Columbus and her husband is a junior at Ohio State University.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Olinger were hosts for the rehearsal dinner on Friday evening at the Three Centuries in Waynesville, which included both families and the wedding party.

A pre-nuptial linen shower was given for the couple by the attendants, and a personal shower by Mrs. Dennis Atley and Mrs. David Glenn, sisters of the groom. A "staple" shower was also given by Mr. and Mrs. William F. McCoy of Wilmington.

Taft, Glenn agree

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ohio Sens.
Robert Taft Jr., a Republican, and John Glenn, a Democrat, both voted with the majority Tuesday when the Senate adopted 54-35 an amendment by Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., banning the use of the drug DES as an additive to cattle feed unless it is proved it will not cause cancer in humans eating beef.

NEW ADDITION — The final cavalry charge was a major new addition to the 1975 version of the outdoor drama "Tecumseh!" at the Sugarloaf Mountain amphitheater near Chillicothe.

Attendance nears 60,000 mark

'Tecumseh!' crowds shatter record

CHILLICOTHE — The outdoor bicentennial drama "Tecumseh!" attracted audiences of 58,927 for the 1975 season at the Sugarloaf Mountain amphitheater near Chillicothe. The attendance figure top the drama's 1974 total by 26 per cent and are the largest audience figures ever logged by an Ohio outdoor drama.

"There are no final totals on our gate receipts as of yet," explained Allen Witt, promotions director, "but we are hoping that we may have gained enough funds to pay off a few of our outstanding debts."

"Tecumseh!", which is produced by the non-profit Scioto Society, was created for the purpose of establishing a tourist industry in the Ross, Pike, and Pickaway county area of southern Ohio. That goal has been achieved, according to Witt. The total economic impact on southern Ohio should be near the $7 million mark for the summer of 1975.

Planning has already begun for the 1976 "Tecumseh!" season. The drama will begin on June 21 and continue a full 11 weeks, closing on September 4. It is hoped that this will allow us to deal more effectively with the huge crowds expected for the bicentennial," Witt explained.

"Tecumseh!" a sister drama, "Trumpet in the Land", reported audiences in the neighborhood of 32,000 for its season. This represents a six per cent increase for the New Philadelphia based drama.

These figures, combined with other reported increases from Americas other 42 outdoor dramas, establish a trend that can not be ignored, according to Witt. "Outdoor drama is becoming an established art form. We have a regular, and dependable audience. For instance, audience members have returned to "Tecumseh!" as often as eleven times in a single season. Other families have set about visiting all of the Outdoor Dramas in the U.S. Our fans are just as avid as those for any football team, and their numbers are growing every year."

"Our only major problem now is dealing with the increasing demand for our product. Our parking and ticket facilities must be expanded before 1976 for instance. There is $500,000 worth of work that will be mandatory on the Amphitheatre facility in the next three years to increase handling and comfort of audiences," Witt said.

Welfare rolls show drop

WASHINGTON (AP) — Welfare rolls dipped slightly in May for the first time in nearly a year and cash payments also declined, signaling a turnaround in the nation's economy, according to government figures released today.

A total of 11,357,442 persons were drawing Aid to Families with

Dependent Children (AFDC) benefits, down 11,607 or .1 per cent from April.

The Department of Health,

Education and Welfare said this was the first decrease since rising unemployment began pushing AFDC rolls upward in August 1974.

HEW said May cash payments to AFDC recipients amounted to $735.7 million, down $6.2 million or .9 per cent from the previous month and the first drop since May 1974.

As another indication of economic recovery, the department announced that 21 of the 25 states paying AFDC to families headed by jobless fathers recorded

May decreases ranging from less than 1 per cent to more than 17 per cent.

A total of 512,597 persons in families headed by unemployed fathers drew

May welfare benefits averaging $288 per family, or 2.8 per cent less than a month earlier.

The issue was rejected by nearly a 2-1 margin, with 6,803 voting "no" and 3,522 voting for the levy. The issue needed an affirmative vote of 55 per cent for passage.

The levy passed in only four of the city's 36 precincts. If approved the levy would have run five years to finance construction of a low dam to maintain a pool of water in the river during dry periods.

Glenn promotes natural gas bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John
Glenn, D-Ohio, introduced legislation
Tuesday which he said could help alleviate the short-term natural gas crisis expected this winter.

The bill would allow a temporary, partial lifting of price controls on interstate gas pipelines serving distressed areas, earmark newly found gas from offshore wells to the gas-short states and empower the Federal Energy Administration to order electric power plants to convert to coal or fuel oil.

Glenn said that several bills have been introduced in the Congress to alleviate the longterm gas problem, but the short-term problem has not been faced.

"We are on the brink of an unemployment disaster of unknown, but extremely serious proportions," Glenn said. "That emergency can no longer be written off as imaginary or way down the road."

At Columbus television station

Former WCH woman accepts production manager's post

COLUMBUS — Carol Witherspoon, formerly of Washington C.H. and an employee of WLWC-TV in Columbus since 1967, has been promoted to the position of production manager for the Columbus television station.

Miss Witherspoon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard R. Witherspoon, 726 Yeoman St., will be replacing Ken Trinkle, who has accepted a position as operations manager for WIX-TV in Columbia, S.C.

A native of Washington C.H. and a graduate of Washington High School, Miss Witherspoon began her affiliation with WLWC-TV as a film clerk in the film department. In 1970, she was promoted to producer-director where she served as producer for the local Emmy award winning show "I'll See You in Court," along with the more recent successes of "Help Thy Neighbor," and "Great Day at the Fair."

Another one of Miss Witherspoon's broadcasting careers highlights came in 1972 when she was selected as one of the "outstanding young women in America."

In September, 1974, Miss Witherspoon became facilities supervisor before accepting her present promotion.

Miss Witherspoon holds a bachelor of arts degree in speech from Miami University in Oxford.

Water short for school

CARDINGTON, Ohio (AP) — Cardington schools will remain closed another four or five days because of a water shortage brought about when pressure dropped at the community's six shallow wells.

William Hack, sanitarian for the Morrow County Health Department, said a new well was undergoing test pumping and "looks promising." He said it would be a few days before it could be put into production.

Adding to the problems was a malfunction on a main line pump that left the community virtually without water.

Hack said maintenance is continuing on the supply system and the community is looking for other sources of water outside its boundaries to avoid shortages in the future.

About 1,300 students around Cardington are out of school because of the shortage. Cardington is a village of 1,800, six miles south of the county seat, Mount Gilead.

Inmate indicted for con game

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A Franklin County grand jury has indicted a prison inmate on two counts of grand theft, accusing him of operating a bogus publishing scheme from behind prison bars.

Darrell W. Casady, 29, who is serving a 3-32-year sentence for robbery and possession of burglary tools, pleaded innocent to the charges last week. No trial date has been set.

The indictment lists 153 persons who allegedly were bilked into subscribing at $1 apiece to a nonexistent magazine Casady promoted from his cell.

The indictment also said a northern Ohio newspaper, the Lorain Journal, ran a full-page advertisement for the magazine under promise of payment of $510, which was never paid.

Malpractice policies end

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Officials of the Aetna Life & Casualty Co. said Tuesday the firm will stop writing malpractice insurance in Ohio on Dec. 1 because of heavy company losses.

The decision will affect about 1,000 doctors, the officials said.

Harold M. Richter, casualty general manager for northern Ohio said the company lost about $1 million in its malpractice insurance business last year.

"We stayed in the business until another market was made available by the joint underwriting association passed by the Ohio Legislature," Richter said.

Aetna is the last major company to write malpractice insurance in the state. The firm already stopped providing coverage in at least 20 other states.

Aetna officials said the company figured it would face even higher losses because of required participation in the state underwriting pool.

Ohio spent another clear, cool night with temperatures at daybreak ranging from 42 in Youngstown and Toledo to 56 in Cincinnati.

A cool high pressure area centered over Pennsylvania this morning was responsible for the cool temperatures. This high was to drift eastward today with southerly winds bringing warmer temperatures to Ohio today and tonight.

Low pressure developing in the central part of the country was to move eastward spreading clouds and a chance of showers over the state tonight.

The showers and possible thunderstorms were to become more likely Thursday as the system pushes closer to Ohio.

Sunshine and southerly winds were to bring a fine day to the state today. Highs were forecast to reach the 70s and low 80s with lows tonight falling into the upper 50s and low 60s.

Highs Thursday will be similar to today's with increased humidities.

A chance of showers Friday, mostly fair Saturday and Sunday. Highs in the low 70s in northern Ohio and 75 to 80 in the south. Lows near 60 early Friday and in the 50s Saturday and Sunday.

Inmate indicted for con game

The indictment said Casady tried to sell subscriptions to a magazine called PACE (Penal Action for Correctional Education), promising articles written by inmates, guards, prison officials, judges, lawyers, police, prosecutors and parole officials.

Advertisements for the magazine offered coupons redeemable for free merchandise. The Lorain Journal advertisement offered coupons for five gallons of gasoline, two lightbulbs and a jar of coffee for the $1 subscription.

Ohio Highway Patrol investigators said an Oberlin woman became an unwitting accomplice after answering a classified advertisement asking for a "pen pals" for inmates at the Chillicothe Correctional Institution where Casady was imprisoned.

The patrol said Sheila Hagerty, 18, believed Casady was going to publish the magazine in the prison compound. Officers said she put up $175 to buy the first ad for the magazine and another $30 to open a checking account in the name of Clearing House Publishers.

Investigators said of the $153 received, Miss Hagerty forwarded $140 to Casady to cover costs.

Officers said she realized something was wrong when subscribers complained that they had not received their magazine and the newspaper began asking for payment on its ad.

A spokesman for the county prosecutor's office said Miss Hagerty apparently was an unwitting victim and would not be prosecuted.

Clubhouse 22

FEATURED GUESTS — Slated to attend Saturday's fund-raising carnival at Eyman Park are Duffy the Dog and Joe of the Clubhouse 22 television show and John W. Brown, president of the Ohio Leukemia Society. All are to arrive early Saturday and stay until about noon. They will be special guests of the Leroy Crabtree family, sponsors of the carnival. Ten-year-old Julie Beth Crabtree has battled leukemia for the past four years and was Ohio's 1972 poster girl.

This year's event to be held at Eyman Park

Leukemia carnival slated

By GEORGE MALEK

Spurred by spectacular success last year with a backyard fund-raising carnival, the Leroy Crabtree family and their friends will sponsor daylong activities at Eyman Park Saturday for the benefit of the Leukemia Society of America.

The Crabtrees, who reside in Lakewood Hills, raised $350 for the leukemia society last fall by having a carnival at their home. The figure probably could have been much higher, but the family ran out of prizes in mid-afternoon and several persons remarked that they did not attend because they were unable to find a parking space.

In hopes of raising even more money this year, the family requested permission to sponsor a fair at Eyman Park. Friends of the family and local merchants donated prizes, baked goods, gift items and their talents. The schedule of activities grew to the point where the carnival promises to be one of the most "professional" amateur fairs in the area.

Former Ohio Lt. Gov. John W. Brown, president of the Ohio Leukemia Society, asked to attend, and children's favorite, "Duffy the Dog," from the Clubhouse 22 (WKEF-TV in Dayton) television show will also be a guest. Local musicians will provide live music throughout the afternoon.

No one in the community is more aware of the work done by the Leukemia Society than 10-year-old Julie Beth Crabtree. Stricken by the blood disease in 1971, she was not expected to live more than a few months.

However, aided by drugs developed by leukemia society's research foundation, Julie Beth has successfully battled the dread disease for more than four years. No cure has yet been found, but with continuing research, there is hope.

Maintaining an expert research staff is expensive, but the Crabtrees know that without it, their daughter would not be with them now. Helping to raise funds for the Leukemia Society is their way of saying "thank you" to the foundation for the past four years.

CARNIVAL ACTIVITIES will begin at 9 a.m. and continue until 6 p.m. A wide variety offers something for children and parents alike.

While children will be eager to meet Duffy the Dog and Joe, hosts of the Clubhouse 22 show, parents are more likely to introduce themselves to Brown, a Republican leader who served as lieutenant governor of Ohio for more than a decade. Both are expected to arrive at the park about 10:30 a.m. They will stay for approximately an hour.

Carnival games, a puppet show and a variety of foods will entertain children. Refreshments will include soft drinks, cotton candy, homemade waffles, barbecue sandwiches and candy.

Parents may visit the farmers' market, the bake sale and "Minnie Pearl's" gift shop, which will feature a variety of homemade and handmade items as well as donations from local residents.

Hog dogs are, perhaps, America's favorite food, and Robert L. Kunz, Fayette Memorial Hospital administrator, has volunteered to be chef-of-the-day and man the grill.

"Local response to the carnival has been tremendous," Mrs. Crabtree said.

Marijuana issue on Oxford ballot

OXFORD, Ohio (AP) — Mike Avey, a 27-year-old law student, wants Oxford to become Ohio's first city to decriminalize marijuana.

And despite vigorous opposition, he's not letting his two-year crusade go up in smoke.

The issue goes on the ballot Nov. 4 and Avey is busy recruiting support from Miami of Ohio students who could hold the key to the project. He is concentrating on getting Miami students registered to vote by the Oct. 6 voter registration deadline.

"If they—the students—find out they can decriminalize marijuana, then they'll do something about housing problems," said Avey.

Avey's legal struggle has ended up on the ballot in the form of a city ordinance which would make "casual" possession—four ounces or less—an offense comparable to a parking violation. The offender would be fined $5.

Oxford Police Chief Joseph Statum feels that the proposed marijuana ordinance is unconstitutional. Oxford Law Director Robert Piper said passage of the ordinance would leave local police in a dilemma of deciding whether to enforce a state statute or the lesser local law.

The present state law makes the possession of less than 3.5 ounces of marijuana an offense punishable by no more than a $100 fine with no prison sentence allowable.

Judge Cramer said the new state drug law and the proposed marijuana ordinance do not radically differ because both create a dividing point for casual possession. He contends the $95 difference in maximum fine is not grounds enough to make the proposed ordinance unconstitutional.

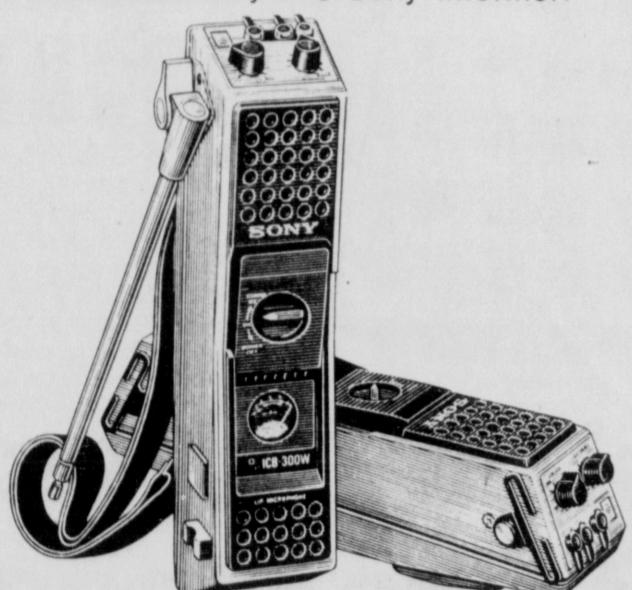

Butler County Prosecutor John Holcomb has already lost one round in his fight to keep the issue off the ballot. He said he will challenge the constitutionality of the marijuana issue if voters approve it.

Jurors return guilty verdict in drug sale

Jurors determined Tuesday in Fayette County Common Pleas Court that the involvement of Randy E. Payton in an alleged drug sale between two other persons was sufficient to warrant a verdict of guilty on a drug-trafficking charge.

Payton, 18, of 522 Peddicord Ave., was found guilty of sale of marijuana after jurors deliberated more than an hour. He acted as a "go-between" for two other persons in the alleged sale.

Testimony at the trial by prosecution and defense witness alike showed that Payton had been asked by undercover agent Tom Vollberg of the Ohio attorney general's office if he knew where the agent could obtain marijuana.

The defendant testified that he accompanied Vollberg to the home of a Bloomingburg youth, providing directions to the house. He then went to the door and spoke briefly with the resident.

A few minutes later, the youth came out of the house carrying a bag of marijuana. He handed it to the agent and said he would sell it for $20. Vollberg made the purchase and left. Payton testified that he received no profit from the transaction and did not use or touch the marijuana sold. The testimony of each of the witnesses was essentially the same.

In his closing arguments, Fayette County prosecuting attorney James A. Kiger said the evidence clearly indicated that Payton aided in the sale. Without the defendant's participation, the sale would never have been consummated, he said.

Under Ohio law, anyone aiding or abetting in the commission of a crime is subject to the same punishment as a principle offender.

Defense attorney Andrew Dennison of Cincinnati argued that Payton's role in the transaction was very minor and was insufficient to warrant a conviction under the outline and intent of the law. He noted that Payton in no way initiated or solicited the sale, but rather responded only to inquiries of the agent. Neither he nor co-counselor Robert Simpson of Washington C.H. contested the facts in evidence — they contested a finding of guilty based on such "minor" involvement.

Judge Evelyn W. Coffman thanked the jury for its attentiveness throughout the two-day trial and dismissed the jurors at 2:30 p.m.

She suggested a pre-sentence investigation of the defendant who faces a prison term of up to 40 years.

Seated on the jury were Donald Crabtree, foreman, Robert Agle, Robert Moore, Jane Grim, Paul Murphy, Kenneth Ritenour, Beth Wilson, Carroll Ritenour, Kay Ritenour, Lowell Hollis, Thelma Everhart and Roger Steen. The alternate juror was Foster Kelley.

Teacher contract talks continue

By The Associated Press

Teachers in New York and Chicago, two of the nation's largest school systems, remained on strike today while contract negotiations continued.

All public schools in Chicago were closed. In New York, a school board spokesman said the system was shut down for all practical purposes, although some schools opened for small numbers of students.

Other strikes closed schools or curtailed classes in dozens of smaller cities across the nation.

Teachers in New York City defied a state judge who ordered them back to work. "The strike will go on," declared Albert Shanker, president of the AFL-CIO United Federation of Teachers.

The city's 67,000 teachers struck at midnight Monday when their contract expired after the first day of classes. The union and the school board resumed negotiations Tuesday night, but Shanker predicted a long strike.

The New York public school system, with 1.1 million pupils and 950 schools, is the largest in the nation. On Tuesday, about 37,000 pupils showed up for class, but most were sent home.

In Chicago, a week-old strike gave the 530,000 pupils in the nation's third largest school system an extended summer vacation. None of the city's 660 schools has opened for fall classes.

In New York, where teachers earned $9,700 to $20,350 last year, the salary scale was not a strike issue.

Instead, in that metropolitan which has stumbled from one financial crisis to another, negotiators were bogged down on working conditions. Teachers fought against school board attempts to enlarge classes, reduced preparation time and sick leaves and eliminate sabbaticals.

Chicago's eight city colleges, with a total enrollment of 90,000, also remained closed. In connection with that strike, Norman Swenson, president of the Cook County Teachers Union, on Tuesday was ordered jailed for five months after refusing to obey a back-to-work order issued by a Circuit Court judge.

In other teachers' strikes:

— 130,000 pupils were affected by strikes in 29 school districts in Pennsylvania.

— Strikes in 10 Rhode Island communities affected a total of 60,000 pupils

Tuesday.

— In the San Francisco Bay area,

Berkeley and San Jose teachers remained on strike, Oakland teachers scheduled a strike vote and San Francisco teachers considered taking a strike vote.

— All 15,000 pupils were out of class in the Clover Park School District in Tacoma, Wash.

AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Okay, gang, tonight's new series lineup is "Doctor's Hospital" on NBC, "Kate McShane" on CBS, and "When Things Were Rotten" and "Starsky and Hutch" on ABC.

The sole goodie is "Rotten," the Mel Brooks-created takeoff on the Robin Hood legend. Its humor is so broad you'll need a 25-foot wide set to catch it all, so dash out and get a 25-foot wide set.

"McShane," with Anne Meara as a feisty lawyer, is a salute to over-acting and bad writing. Its plot concerns a young ex-radical lady who has a good present but is arrested for an explosively bad past.

One comment from the radical gives you an idea of it all: "I just guess I'm not ready to hold hands with the Establishment."

NBC's medicine show, starring George Peppard as a chief neurosurgeon, has competent acting. But it suffers from a dread TV disease called rehashplotitis, compounded by switchitis.

Despite a strained ending, "Forrester" had good acting, a fair plot, reasonably good dialogue and believable characters.

Not so "Starsky and Hutch." It is an amateur hour of acting and dialogue, accented by gunfire and ceaseless, fire-burning 180-degree chase-sequence turns by Starsky, who can't even do a 180 correctly.

In last night's "Joe Forrester" premiere on NBC, Lloyd Bridges, as a wise old beat cop, also chased a salt-and-pepper team who, disguised as plainclothes cops, also committed stickups.

Reaching 47 on his fifth attempt, like made six good tries at 48, at times missing only one penny from the stack, before giving up with the comment, "47 sounds pretty good."

Slender, with longer than average hands and fingers, Mike seems to flip his arm quickly enough that the coins appear to be suspended, still in a stack, for a moment before his hand closes around them.

"You want to drop your arm straight down, out from under the coins," he said. "If you try to slip them up with your elbow they come apart and go all over."

After his brother, John, pointed out the record in the book, Mike took just one day to make a record snatch of 40.

"He took just a week to build up to 47. "I was flipping just a couple of coins off my elbow when John showed me the record book," he said. "I didn't know it existed before that."

Holding the unofficial world record for coin snatching is Mike Brock, 17, son of William and Toni Brock.

Young Brock shattered the record by snatching 47 coins to top the existing record of 39 set by Chris Redford.

Some paperwork remains to be done to satisfy the "Guinness Book of World Records," but Mike appears to have a good shot at it.

Published in the Guinness book on page 451, with picture, is the following report on the former titleholder:

"The greatest number of coins caught after being flipped from a pile on the forearm is 39 by Chris Redford at the Cardwell Arms, Adlington, England, on Sept. 26, 1973."

"Sometimes I don't catch them all and then you have wall-to-wall money," said young Brock.

First doing 10, then 20, then 30 at a time, Brock worked his way up to a record-breaking number at ease, running into difficulty only later, about 45, when the stack of coins is almost three inches in height.

Balancing 45 coins on the elbow isn't easy, not to mention catching them.

After catching the 45 on his third try, he added a penny to each succeeding attempt, trying to reach a goal of 50. He managed to catch 47 before this reporter, although he said he has flipped and caught as many as 49.

Reaching 47 on his fifth attempt, like made six good tries at 48, at times missing only one penny from the stack, before giving up with the comment, "47 sounds pretty good."

Slender, with longer than average hands and fingers, Mike seems to flip his arm quickly enough that the coins appear to be suspended, still in a stack, for a moment before his hand closes around them.

"You want to drop your arm straight down, out from under the coins," he said. "If you try to slip them up with your elbow they come apart and go all over."

After his brother, John, pointed out the record in the book, Mike took just knack is a natural ability. "You can practice, but it doesn't help."

The process for entering it as an official record in Guinness is a signed statement by several witnesses and a clipping from a newspaper or magazine article. Mike has both.

If he makes it, he will be in the record book along with champions in such areas as coal shoveling, coin balancing, crawling and cucumber slicing.

Coe, LeBeau, Cobb win honors

Trace to face tougher foe

By PHIL LEWIS
Record-Herald Sports Editor

The Miami Trace Panthers will face another Springfield team this Friday, and head coach Fred Zechman thinks his squad will have a tougher time with Greenon than they had with Northeastern last week.

"They use a power attack with their 215-pound fullback either running or blocking for the halfbacks," the Trace coach said after reviewing scouting reports on Greenon. "We think they're a better ball team than the one we played last week."

Zechman won't have to worry about Friday's encounter if the Knights from Greenon aren't a lot better than the last opponent as the Panthers completely dominated the second half to hand Northeastern a 26-0 setback last Friday.

However, Greenon has 23 lettermen back from last season's 2-7 squad and 10 of the offensive starters are senior while nine of the defensive mainstays are seniors.

This great amount of experience and a new coach, Charles Fortner, could put some fresh ingredients in the Knights' attack and produce some headaches for the Panthers.

The Knights were nipped by Park Hills, 13-6 in the season opener because of a fourth period touchdown while rushing for 92 yards on a muddy field. They scored on a rare (for Greenon) 22-yard pass by the reserve quarterback.

Coach Fortner will use the running and blocking of Martin Minna, the 215-pound fullback, in his power offense. Minna, who also plays noseguard in the Knights' 5-4 monster defense, was an all-Central Buckeye Conference selection last season as a junior.

Zechman said he is preparing for a ground oriented offense Friday and there may be a few changes in the Panther secondary as the Knights are reportedly reluctant to put the ball in the air.

Fans wishing to attend the contest should take U.S. 35 to Xenia, catch U.S. 68-North to Springfield, turn left on Fairfield Rd., then turn right on Rocky Point Rd. Greenon High School is at the end of the Rocky Point.

Zechman singled out three Panther gridironers for their work in last week's victory. Junior fullback Rex Coe was named offensive player of the week. He ran for 102 yards in 17 carries, caught three passes and threw key blocks to spring Bruce Ervin and Bill Warnock for touchdowns.

Two Panthers shared the defensive player of the week honor. Dan LeBeau, 6-0, 180-pound tackle, was mentioned for his five unassisted tackles and eight assists as he helped hold Northeastern to just 49 yards rushing. The other defensive player of the week is not a stranger to the honor. Senior captain Greg Cobb, who has won the award many times in past seasons, was singled out for his six solo tackles with two of those coming behind the line of scrimmage, four assists and one interception that set up a Panther touchdown.

Winners of Zechman's "Big Lick" awards went to Rick Saunders for his hit on the center, Bill Warnock for his tackle of the Jets' quarterback and Jeff Ruth for his hit on a Northeastern receiver.

Nero victorious

in Jug preview

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Nero had just paced to his 28th victory in 31 starts, but his veteran driver, Joe O'Brien remained skeptical.

"He's still not as sharp as I want him for the Little Brown Jug," said O'Brien Tuesday night after Nero's winning 1:58 1 1/2-mile trip in the $26,750 Jug Preview at Scioto Downs.

"He's sound. That's what we're after," conceded O'Brien after the 3-year-old pacing sensation brushed aside the challenges of two longshots, secondplace Bret's Champ and third-place Shirley's Beau.

Missouri takes grid poll jump

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The Missouri Tigers, unheralded in the preseason rankings, have climbed into fifth place in this week's Associated Press college football poll thanks to Monday night's nationally televised 20-7 upset of Alabama.

The stunning setback dropped the Crimson Tide, runnerup in the first 1975 poll, all the way to 13th.

Oklahoma's defending national champions held onto first place, although they don't open their season until Saturday. The Sooners received 51 first-place votes and 1,08 points from a panel of 50 sports writers and broadcasters across the country.

Alabama's defeat allowed Michigan, Ohio State and Southern California to move up one spot each to second, third and fourth, respectively. Michigan received one first-place ballot and 918 points, Ohio State got three No. 1 votes and 787 points while Southern Cal earned 746 points. None of the three has played a game yet.

The remaining first-place vote went to Missouri and the Tigers' total of 579 points shot them all the way up to fifth place ahead of Nebraska, Auburn, Notre Dame, Texas A&M and Penn State, who round out the Top Ten. Missouri and Penn State are the only members of the first regular-season Top Ten to have seen action.

NFL teams cut down to 46

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

It was the Stock Exchange at midday. It was rush hour in midtown.

It was cutdown day in the National Football League.

Players retired, went on waivers, or were otherwise discarded with the rapidity of machine gun fire Tuesday as coaches frantically pared their rosters to the 46-man limit.

And some big names fell victim to old age, poor health, or the simple inability to cut the mustard.

Tight end Marv Fleming, the only player to appear in five Super Bowls, was cut by the Washington Redskins. Center Bill Curry of the Green Bay Packers retired, as did defensive back Cornell Green of the Dallas Cowboys. And veteran linebacker Bobby Bell was placed on waivers by the Kansas City Chiefs. Coaches get to do it all again next Tuesday, when the final trim to 43 players is due.

Fleming, a 13-year veteran, had played in two Super Bowls with the Packers and three more with the Miami Dolphins.

Curry, an 11-year man, had played with Fleming on the Packer team that beat the Kansas City Chiefs 35-10 in Super Bowl I eight years ago.

Green ended a 13-season career that included his becoming an all-pro at strong safety and corner back. The 49ers also sent cornerback Frank Oliver to the Buffalo Bills for a draft pick.

That was only the beginning. The New York Jets traded running back Mike Adamle to the Chicago Bears, receiving RB Carl Garrett and a 1976 draft. Cincinnati swapped guard Pat Matsen to Green Bay for a future draft. New Orleans got a mystery choice from Miami for wide receiver Melvin Baker, and the Oakland Raiders traded running back Charlie Green and wide receiver Kent Gaydos to Philadelphia for more picks.

Minnesota running back Oscar Reed now belongs to Atlanta after another draft deal; St. Louis has a draft choice for sending running back Jim Germany to Green Bay; the Saints got a pick from Baltimore for RB Howard Steens, and Dallas sent linebacker Keri Hutcherson to San Diego for, you guessed it, an undisclosed draft choice.

Matson was the last remaining member of the original Bengals franchise team formed in 1968. He came to Cincinnati from the Denver Broncos. Matson said he would say nothing detrimental about the Bengals.

"I want people to remember the good I did. I don't want them to say I was a sour apple."

The Matsons will keep their home in Cincinnati, however. Matson has two body building shops in the city.

Pat Matson shrugs off quick trade

CINCINNATI (AP) — Offensive guard Pat Matson said he doesn't believe his union activity was a factor in the Cincinnati Bengals trading him to the Green Bay Packers.

If that were the case, said the muscular 10-year veteran, it would have been last year when he led the picket line in the National Football League Players Association strike.

"I wouldn't think that would be a factor now," said Matson, who said he was advised by the Packers he will move directly into a starting position for the game this week with the San Francisco 49ers.

Padres wipe out Reds, 11-2

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson has the team with the best record in baseball, but he is worried about the National League playoffs.

If the playoffs go the full five games, the Reds will have to play the last three on the road. That bothers them because they are 60-16 at home this season, compared to 36-32 on the road.

"If we play Pittsburgh, we could be in trouble because they have so much lefthanded pitching," Anderson said Tuesday night after San Diego left-hander Rich Folkers, 6-9, stopped the Reds with a threehit 11-2.

As a result, the Reds are only 23-22 against southpaws this season, compared to 73-26 against righthanders.

"If we play the Pirates, we know we'll face Jerry Reuss, a lefthander, in the first and fifth games," Anderson said, "and he's beaten us three times this year."

Meantime, the Padres picked an opportune time Tuesday night to come up with their highest run total of the season. They snapped an offensive slump on the eve of a two-game series here against the Atlanta Braves, who trailed them by only one game in the battle for fourth place in the Western Division.

"It means a lot to us to finish fourth," said San Diego Manager John McNamara, who has Randy Jones, 18-9, ready to face Atlanta righthander Carl Morton, 17-15, Wednesday night.

McNamara is encouraged because Willie McCovey is on fire with the bat. Tuesday night, the 37-year-old first baseman drove in four runs with two singles and his 19th homer.

McCovey has driven in six runs in his last two games and 16 in the last 15. He also has five homers in 11 games and this should become the 11th season in which he has hit 20 or more homers in the majors. Last year, his first with the Padres, the big first baseman hit 22 homers and 17 came during the second half.

"I threw two fast balls by him but I tried to do it again and he really nailed it," losing Cincinnati righthander Clay Kirby, 9-6, said of the towering two-run homer McCovey hit in the fifth inning.

Elsewhere in the NL, the Chicago Cubs nipped the Pirates 6-5; the Montreal Expos edged the New York Mets 2-1 in 10 innings; the San Diego Padres pounded the Cincinnati Reds 11-2; the Los Angeles Dodgers tripped the San Francisco Giants 8-3, and the Atlanta Braves beat the Houston Astros 4-1.

The Cubs had slowed Pittsburgh's pennant express but Chicago Manager Jim Marshall expects the derailment to be only temporary.

"The Pirates to me look about the same as they did last year," Marshall said, "and they won it last year." Andy Thornton rapped his 15th homer, then smacked a tie-breaking single to lead Chicago past Pittsburgh. Bill Bonham and relief pitcher Paul Reuschel combined for a sevenhitter against the Pirates, who made three errors and allowed four unearned runs.

Dodgers 8, Giants 3

Lee Lacy's tie-breaking single in the eighth inning touched off a five-run rally, giving the Dodgers a victory that pulled them 6½ games ahead of the third-place Giants.

Astros 4, Braves 1

Home runs from Marty Perez, Mike Lum and Dave May of the Atlanta Braves powered rookie right-hander Adrian Devine to his first victory of the season. Devine was summoned last week from the Braves' Richmond, Va., farm club.

Expos 2, Mets 1

Jim Dwyer's single and Mike Jorgenson's run-scoring double in the 10th inning sent the faltering Mets to their fifth straight loss. The Mets, who were part of the NL East pennant race a week ago before losing two of three to the Pirates, are now nine games out.

Indians 3, Red Sox 2

Alan Ashby's run-scoring single in the 10th led Cleveland over Boston. George Hendrick doubled and eventually scored on Ashby's hit to left.

Rangers 3-4, Twins 0-2

Dave Nelson's two-run single in the ninth capped a three-run rally, leading Texas over Minnesota in the second game for a sweep of their doubleheader.

A's 2, Royals 1

Bill North's run-scoring single with two out in the 14th inning gave Oakland its big victory over Kansas City. The victory boosted the A's lead to seven games over the Royals in the American League West.

A two-out error by Kansas City shortstop Fred Patek opened the door for the A's winning rally. Bert Campaneris, who reached base on Patek's miscue, stole second and raced home with the gamewinner on North's dramatic hit.

Angels 5, White Sox 4

Mike Miley drove in two runs with a single and sacrifice fly and Bruce Bochte doubled home the eventual winning run in the seventh inning to lead California over Chicago.

Yankees 9, Tigers 6

New York first baseman Chris Chambliss became the first Yankee to wallop five hits in a game this season in the Yankee's defeat of Detroit. He singled home a run in a three-run first, doubled home one in a three-run third and capped a two-run rally in the eighth with an RBI single. In addition, Chambliss had two more singles.

Rangers 3-4, Twins 0-2

Dave Nelson's two-run single in the ninth capped a three-run rally, leading Texas over Minnesota in the second game for a sweep of their doubleheader.

Opening lead - jack of spades.

There is more to the art of guessing two-way finesses correctly than meets the eye. The best players have a knack for guessing right far more frequently than they apparently should, but it's not just plain luck that leads them to the right decision so often.

Consider this deal where the play started with three rounds of spades. Declarer ruffed and was faced with the question of whether to play a trump to the king and take a trump finesse at trick five, or whether to take a trump finesse at trick four by playing low to the ten.

Declarer "guessed" right when he played a low heart to the ten, which won. He continued with the king, played a club to the ace, and cashed his ace of trumps, East showing out. South then ran his clubs and it did not matter when West ruffed, because that would be the last trick for the defense.

Had declarer played a heart to the king and then finessed the ten, he would have gone down at least one after a fourth round of spades by West.

Now let's suppose East had held the Q-8-5-2 of trumps instead of West. In that case, East would have won dummy's ten with the queen, but he would then have found himself helpless, whatever he returned. South, in that event, would have had ten unassailable tricks.

In effect, declarer's willingness to lose the ten of trumps to East and his unwillingness to lose it to West was a safety play covering every possible 4-2 or 3-3 division of the trumps. It was not so much a question of guessing which defender held the queen; it was more a question of guaranteeing the contract against any normal division of the cards.

Injured officer to keep job

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A young detective, blinded in one eye during an antibusing riot, managed a weak smile when he learned he still has a job on the police force, despite his injury.

Michael Doughty, a 26-year-old bachelor, was one of scores of officers injured last Friday night during a brick and bottle throwing battle between police and about 10,000 antibusing demonstrators.

He was struck in the eye by a projectile hurled from a slingshot type device.

Doughty received bad news Monday that was not unexpected — all attempts to save his eye had failed.

"They just broke the word," said Russell McDaniel, 46, chief of the 400-man Jefferson County Police Department. "He is very depressed."

The news didn't come as a total shock to the young officer, who had been promoted to the detective division only recently. His physicians told him immediately after the injury there was virtually no chance to save the eye.

"He is very low, very depressed," said McDaniel, a 25-year veteran of the force. "But he is a terrific young man, and he will make it back again."

McDaniel said he visited Doughty after doctors came in with their verdict. Doughty was concerned about his future, the chief said.

"I assured him that he would still be a policeman," McDaniel said. "He smiled, and a tear came to the eye that is not bandaged."

"He said, 'that means more to me than you will ever know,'" said McDaniel. "I told him we need him very badly."

Todd Hollenbach, the county's chief executive officer, telephoned the young officer, also to reassure him that his job is secure, McDaniel said.

"There are many jobs he can do," the chief said, declining to mention any specifically. "He's been with us about five years. He is too valuable and has too much experience, so he will have a job."

Doughty, an all-star baseball and basketball player in his high school days in Louisville, spends most of his time working with youngsters, McDaniel commented in an interview.

"He worked with youth all the time," the chief noted. "Just about all his free time he spent in Little League, managing a baseball team."

McDaniel said the riot Friday night in which Doughty was hurt "was one of the worst situations I've ever been confronted with."

"You get pretty calloused after 25 years as a cop," he said. "But to see people with the animalistic attitude they had, I was just astounded. I didn't believe it."

Set final test for diplomas

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Pupils seeking a high school diploma here may soon be required to pass a test to determine if they are really literate after 12 years of public school.

"I hope this will help answer the people who say a high school diploma doesn't mean anything more," Dr. Donald Johnson, associate superintendent of the city's school system, said Monday.

Johnson said it is the first practical test of literacy in the nation. He said the local school board will be asked next week to make it a requirement for graduation.

The test is based on such practical knowledge as how to understand street signs, newspaper advertisements, Social Security applications and telephone books — the things people come in contact with in everyday living.

"We set out two years ago, at the request of the Florida legislature, to develop a test of functional literacy," Johnson said. "No one had successfully defined it until we went to a large number of people, including about 200 who are illiterate, and found out what are the essential reading skills to survival."

He said the first test devised took three hours to administer.

"That was too long," Johnson said. "We cut it to three separate tests and found we had one that was highly reliable."

What is the cause of a marked flow of saliva? When it does happen I find it uncontrollable.

Mr. E.S.E., Calif.

Dear Mr. E.:

The condition you describe is known as "ptyalism." Normally, an adult produces about two pints of saliva a day. With ptyalism, it may be as much as ten quarts a day.

Tobacco, certain drugs and metals like bismuth and mercury can be responsible for excessive salivation.

There are a number of intestinal and nervous disorders which may be a cause.

You should make a serious effort to try, by trial and error, to establish the cause.

Variety of non-traffic cases aired

A variety of non-traffic cases were aired in Washington Municipal Court Tuesday afternoon.

Dewey Jester, 26, of Washington C.H., was fined $200 and costs and sentenced to 60 days in jail on a criminal mischief charge brought by Vicki Jester, 124 Forest St.

Acting Judge Robert Simpson suspended all the fine and all but six days of the jail term pending good behavior for one year. Jester was also ordered to pay for a door damaged in the incident.

Ricky H. Penwell, 21, Central Place, was fined $100 and costs after he pleaded guilty to a disorderly conduct charge lodged by city police. He was arrested Aug. 30 after creating a disturbance on Court Street, Washington C.H. police officers reported. Fifty dollars of the fine was suspended.

Linda M. Kidder, 20, Bloomingburg, pleaded guilty to an assault charge filed by Becky Ruth, Washington Ave., and was fined $100 and costs. Half the fine was suspended provided she did not appear in court again for one year.

Judge Simpson fined Wilbur E. Williamson, 42, Rt. 6, $25 and costs after Williamson pleaded guilty to a disorderly conduct complaint. The charge was filed by Betty Simmons.

Disorderly conduct charges lodged against Robert P. Gordon, 23, of 1112 Gregg St., and Cherry Jones, 33, of 1112 E. Paint St. were dismissed.

FCC not halting religion broadcasts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission seems unable to stop an avalanche of mail urging it not to do something it never considered doing.

The letters and postcards involving religious broadcasting total about 1.3 million, says Harry Shockro, the FCC's chief of administrative services, who oversees the mail.

But that's 600,000 more than the estimate on Aug. 1, when the commission explained in a public notice that there was never any question of banning religious broadcasting from the airwaves, as almost all the letter writers feared.

The FCC made the explanation in denying a petition for a freeze on applications by religious institutions for television or FM radio channels reserved for educational stations.

Two Los Gatos, Calif., broadcast consultants, Jeremy D. Lansman and Lorenzo W. Milam, contended that the assignment of more than one educational channel in a community to a religious group deprived minority groups of access to the scarce channels.

Their petition, filed last Dec. 5, brought the snowballing avalanche of mail and phone calls to the FCC.

The FCC, in denying it, said: "As a government agency, the commission is enjoined by the First Amendment to observe a stance of neutrality toward religion, acting neither to promote nor to inhibit religion."

The FCC pointed out that the case never did not involve religious

Residential burglaries probed

Two residential burglaries topped the list of investigations made Tuesday by Washington C.H. police and sheriff's departments.

Police reported that someone had entered the Maxine Landrum residence, 704 Blackstone St., and removed a quantity of canned goods. Officers said the entry was made through a bathroom window.

The thief apparently was in no hurry as officers reported he took time to smoke a cigarette and drink two beers. The burglary, reported Tuesday, occurred sometime Saturday afternoon.

Entry was also made into the home of Robert L. Evans, Sheley Road, sometime Tuesday afternoon. Fayette County Sheriff's deputies said a metal bar had been used to pry open the front door of the home, but nothing was reported missing.

Police also are investigating a threatening letter received by Jackie L. King, of 1112 E. Paint St. Officers said the letter was possibly the result of a domestic problem.

A 10-speed bicycle was stolen from the rear of Hidy's Food store, Columbus Ave., Tuesday. Terry Stritenberger, 1664 Dennis St., said he had left the bike there while he was working and when he returned it was gone.

Lebanese army to enter fighting

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Beirut newspapers reported the army would be ordered today to intervene in the fighting between Christians and Moslems in northern Lebanon.

Premier Rashid Karami, a Sunni Moslem, said after a cabinet session Tuesday that he would announce "efficient measures" today to end the fighting in Tripoli, Lebanon's second largest city, and Christian villages east of it.

Karami had been opposed to calling in the army because the Moslems contend the military command is dominated by Christians. But the local press said the cabinet had agreed to give the army's Maronite Christian commander, Gen. Iskandar Ghanem, a six-month leave of absence.

The cabinet was reported considering replacing Ghanem with Brig. Gen. Saad Nasrallah, the chief of staff and former interior minister. He is a Druze, Lebanon's third religious sect, and thus might be considered a neutral between the Moslem and Christian combatants.

Moslem sources in Tripoli said a force of 3,000 Moslems advancing on the Christian town of Zagharta, five miles east of Tripoli, had taken the Christian villages of Erdeh, Alma and Dier Ashash. The sources said this put the Moslems' mortars within two-miles range of Zagharta.

Government security forces were reported establishing checkpoints in the rear of the Moslem militia, on roads to the Zagharta area and on the northern and southern approaches to Tripoli.

Officials said a total of 83 persons were known to have been killed and 212 wounded in the fighting, which began a week ago and escalated into full-scale warfare Sunday. But officials predicted the toll would rise as government patrols penetrated more areas of fighting.

The fighting is the fifth major outbreak this year of warfare between Lebanon's Christian and Moslem communities. Their traditional animosity has been fueled by the presence in the country of more than 200,000 Palestinian Moslems whose guerrilla operations against Israel are supported by Moslem leftists and opposed by conservative Christians.

More than 2,000 persons were killed in fighting in Beirut in April, May and June, and 34 persons were killed in August in Zahle, in eastern Lebanon.

Cooler air heralds fall

By The Associated Press
Fall is approaching, and the nation is beginning to feel it.

Temperatures continued to drop in the northeast today as a high pressure system centered over the east end of the Ohio Valley brought cold dry air into the New England and lower Great Lakes areas.

Scattered frost was reported in a section from eastern Ohio to western New England.

Thundershowers in the southwest quarter of the nation early today led to some local flooding. Motorists in west central Nevada were advised to use caution because of washouts and mud over highways. Highway 80 was partially closed about 30 miles east of Reno due to mud and water.

There were flash flood warnings in effect for the south portion of Inyo County, California including Death Valley. Mud slides closed all highways into Death Valley.

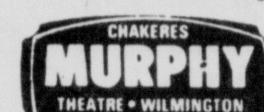

The southeast and the Atlantic and Gulf Coasts continued to experience thunderstorms. Showers and occasional thundershowers pepper the upper Mississippi Valley as well and the southern half of the Rocky Mountains to the plains.

Jennifer S. Wilt, 17, of 614 Gibbs Ave., was cited for failure to maintain an assured clear distance following a two-car crash at the intersection of Columbus Avenue and Forest Street Tuesday afternoon.

Damage in the accident was moderate.

A parked car owned by Donald E. Wald, 497 Staunton-Jasper Road, was

Hike of 32.5 per cent now in effect

Water rate increase authorized by PUCO

By MIKE FLYNN
Record-Herald Editor

C. Everett Robbins, manager of the Ohio Water Service Co., 149 S. Fayette St., announced today that the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio has authorized an emergency and temporary 32½ per cent increase in Washington C.H. water rates.

The rate increase becomes effective today and will be reflected on bills received by area water customers this week, Robbins said.

Robbins said that while the 32½ per cent emergency rate increase is only temporary, the prospects for approval of the permanent rate hike being requested by the company are doubtful, at least in the near future.

"The commission will act later upon our application for higher rates on permanent basis. The temporary emergency rates will remain in effect until the commission orders a change," Robbins pointed out.

The permanent water rate, as requested by the Ohio Water Service Co., would increase another 66 per cent. The emergency rate increase authorized by the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio amounts to an 80-cent hike in the minimum water usage rate.

The minimum water usage rate will now be $3.26 for 200 cubic feet or less per month, instead of $2.46 per month.

The rate increases to $4 for the next 1,800 cubic feet per month; $4.62 for the next 2,000 cubic feet, and $5.08 for over 4,000 cubic feet per month.

The water company submitted the request for an emergency rate increase to the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio after Washington C.H. City Council members rejected the firm's request for a 50 per cent hike. The water company had proposed to City Council a two-step increase, with a 35 per cent increase immediately and an additional 15 per cent six months later.

"We were forced to ask the PUCO a few months ago to authorize a permanent increase in our rates," Robbins said. "When we applied, we also asked to be permitted to put part of the proposed increase into effect on an emergency basis. After a hearing, the commission agreed that we were faced with extraordinary circumstances and a pressing need for relief and granted our request for an emergency rate increase," the water company manager said.

"We regret having had to take action that will increase anyone's cost of living in these difficult days, however, we were pushed to the wall," Robbins said.

The last increase granted to the Ohio Water Service Co. was in 1960 and it was based on the company's operating costs at that time.

"Our rates have remained unchanged for almost 15 years. Meanwhile, all the things we have to buy and pay for have been going up, up, up in price. In spite of our intensive efforts to reduce our expenditures to the minimum consistent with rendering ample and reliable water service, we have been operating at a loss, with large cash deficits. If these were continued, they would put us out of business and imperil Washington C.H.'s water supply," Robbins commented.

Edwards new chairman of Democrat committee

A member of the Fayette County Democratic Committee for the past three years, Leo B. Edwards has been named to succeed the late Milbourne W. Barney as committee chairman.

Edwards, who resides at 902 Lincoln Drive in the city's fourth precinct, had been serving as first vice chairman of the committee. He will be assisted in his duties as the county's Democratic leader by Mrs. Lora White, the committee's second vice president.

Mrs. Louise Rodgers was chosen to fill the vacancy on the Fayette County Board of Elections. Mr. Barney had also served as chairman of that governing board. He died Aug. 22.

A community leader for many years, Edwards is a member of the Fayette County Board of Visitors and a county jury commissioner. He recently retired after serving some 15 years on the Fayette County Memorial Hospital board of trustees.

A native of Kentucky, Edwards is personnel supervisor of the Armcro Steel Corp. Metal Products Division plant on U.S. 35-S. He has been with the firm since 1933 and moved to Washington C.H. When the plant opened in Washington C.H. in Sept., 1950.

Council nears decision on city manager's post

Washington C.H. City Council members held a closed work session Tuesday night to continue to review applications of persons seeking the vacant city manager's post.

City Council chairman Ralph L. Cook, who has been serving as acting city manager since early July, said it is possible that an announcement concerning the vacant city manager's post would be made at tonight's regular semi-monthly meeting.

Cook said he hopes a new city manager can be employed early this month in order that he may be ready to take office in October.

Some 35 persons have filed applications for the city manager's job since Dan Wolford vacated the appointed office July 11.

Higher prices in offing

Ford winning oil battle

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate appears to be unable to overturn President Ford's veto of a crucial energy bill, assuring higher prices for fuel, food and most manufactured goods.

Failing to pick up the votes of three or four eastern Republicans, the Senate's Democratic majority virtually threw in the towel even before Ford on Tuesday announced his long-expected veto of a bill extending controls on oil prices for six months.

Thus, it appeared Ford loyalists and oil-state senators would have about 36 votes—two more than needed to sustain the veto today.

The next step by the Ford administration would be to ask Congress for a 45-day extension of price controls. During that period, Congress would be expected to adopt a gradual phase-out of controls along the lines of the 39-month proposal offered by Ford.

The end result of such a move would be that U.S. oil prices would rise to the level set by the oil-exporting nations, currently about $13.50 a barrel. U.S. oil now sells for an average of $9.50.

All sides agree that such an increase in oil prices would raise the price of gasoline, food, clothing and most other goods. But since the energy battle between Congress and the White House began eight months ago, there has been little agreement on the size of the increase.

The Library of Congress has estimated Ford's plan to end price controls on oil would mean an increase of up to 15 cents in the price of a gallon of gasoline, raise the cost of living by nearly 2 per cent and throw 600,000 Americans out of jobs.

The Ford administration predicts that gasoline prices will rise no more than 6 cents a gallon, and inflation will increase by .8 per cent. The Agriculture Department calculates that retail food prices would rise by about .7 per cent over the next 27 months because of decontrol.

Almost immediately after Ford announced his veto of the six-month

price-control bill, the debate resumed in Congress.

"If the veto is not upheld, the nation is not likely to have a comprehensive energy policy for a couple of more years," said Sen. J. Glenn Beall Jr., R-Md.

Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., called the veto inflationary and "a terrible act of irresponsibility on the part of the President."

"To sustain the veto is to chance a return to the destructive cycle of higher prices and fewer jobs," said Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., who planned to vote with Ford. "To override the veto is to fall asleep in the eye of a storm and ignore the immediate energy crisis."

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said the veto destroyed the Ford administration's credibility in its battle against inflation and recession. "By this one stroke of the pen, the President has aimed a $40-billion energy shock at the American economy, a shock the economy cannot afford to suffer."

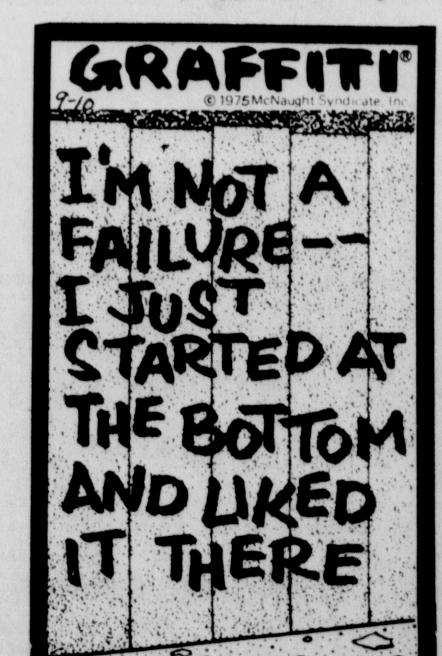

McBride said the order applied to Miss Fromme, Walker, grand jury witnesses and federal, state and local law enforcement officials. He said violators would be subject to contempt of court proceedings.

A federal grand jury is meeting here today, and the government is seeking an attempted murder indictment against Miss Fromme.

bill tightening and revising the state's embattled fuel adjustment clause. It permits utilities, acting on their own, to pass along to consumers the increased costs of fuels they use to produce electricity.

The collective bargaining bill, considered by many to be the most significant to come before the legislature this year, faces an uncertain fate in the House Rules Committee. It was sent there in late July by the House Commerce and Labor Committee which made no recommendation as to approval or rejection.

Hospital practical nursing program ends for 13 women

A 49-week course of study has culminated for 13 students from the Fayette County Memorial Hospital School of Practical Nursing.

The 13 students officially ended their study during an impressive graduation ceremony recently at the First Presbyterian Church in Washington C.H.

Graduates were Deborah Evans, Wilmington; Teresa Wagoner, Hillsboro; Rebecca Dye, Wilmington; Shirley McConkey, Greenfield; Virginia Smith, Clarksburg; Brenda Wallingford, Washington C.H.; Carolyn Earley, Wilmington; Marjorie White, Hillsboro; Janet Ward, Lynchburg; Rosalee Doyle, Sabina; Barbara Maynard, Greenfield; Jean Ann Enochs, Washington C.H., and Deborah Peterson, Frankfort.

The 13 students represented the fifth class of practical nursing school graduates at Fayette County Memorial Hospital. The practical nursing school started in March, 1971 and a total of 51 women have graduated from the program. Many of the graduates have remained on the staff at Fayette Memorial Hospital, while the others have acquired positions in area hospitals, nursing homes and physician's offices.

The program includes courses in anatomy and physiology, family and community health, nutrition and diet therapy and personal backgrounds.

Approximately 725 hours of classroom instruction and 750 hours of clinical experience are included in the program. The students receive experience with medical, surgical, pediatric and obstetric patients as well as the newborn. The students also rotate for periods of observation in order to learn the nurse's role in emergency room, surgery, recovery room, public health and progressive school situations. Time is also spent in the departments of the hospital providing direct patient contact.

The Rev. Gerald Wheat, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Washington C.H., delivered the invocation and benediction at the graduation ceremonies. The organ prelude and recessional were played by Jeff Sheridan.

Mrs. Lora Prater, director of staff development at Fayette County Memorial Hospital, delivered the commencement address and encouraged the graduates to continue their education by admonition. "Nurses will soon need to prove efforts of continuing education to be able to renew their licenses to practice nursing in Ohio," Mrs. Prater said. "Several states have already made this mandatory and Ohio will soon follow suit."

"Many seminars and workshops are now available that grant continuing education units. These units will count toward credit for re-issue of nursing licenses," she said. "These educational programs are made available because

Lynette Fromme claims death of Ford never contemplated

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A Manson trial attorney says Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme confided during a jailhouse visit that she never intended to kill President Ford when she aimed a loaded gun at him.

"What are they mad about?" attorney Daye Shinn quoted Miss Fromme as asking. "The gun didn't go off."

Shinn said in an interview Tuesday that Miss Fromme, still loyal to mass murderer Charles Manson, claims she was seeking attention for Manson and three women followers she feels were unjustly convicted in the 1969 Sharon Tate murder.

The attorney quoted Miss Fromme as saying of the Ford incident here last Friday: "I wasn't going to shoot him. I just wanted to get some attention for a new trial for Charlie and the girls."

Miss Fromme, 26, was charged with the attempted murder of the President after she pointed a .45-caliber semi-automatic pistol at Ford from a distance of only two feet during a presidential visit to the California capital.

Shinn, a Los Angeles lawyer who represented Susan Atkins in the 1970 Manson trial, said Miss Fromme also said she intended to serve as her own attorney if brought to trial.

Later Tuesday, U.S. District Court Judge Thomas J. McBride issued a sweeping publicity "gag" order at the request of Miss Fromme's attorney, federal Public Defender E. Richard Walker.

McBride said the order applied to Miss Fromme, Walker, grand jury witnesses and federal, state and local law enforcement officials. He said violators would be subject to contempt of court proceedings.

A federal grand jury is meeting here today, and the government is seeking an attempted murder indictment against Miss Fromme.

Manson, 40, is now serving a life term at San Quentin Prison for the murder of Miss Tate, an actress, and six others.

State lawmakers return for action on few issues

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State lawmakers return from summer vacation today to face a handful of leftover issues and several vetoes applied in their absence by Republican Gov. James A. Rhodes.

Collective bargaining for public employees, a bill affecting rate-making procedures used by utility companies, and a study of layoffs of state employees had top priority among majority Democrats.

They said they will seek to override Rhodes' vetoes on at least four bills, and believe the chief executive stepped beyond his authority in a series of line-item vetoes he applied to the new equal yield school funding bill. The latter issue may be pursued in the courts, leaders said.

Other matters could come up, but House Speaker Vernal G. Riffe Jr., D-89 New Boston, and Senate Majority Leader Oliver Ocasek, D-27 Akron, said they believed the late summer "clean up" session can be terminated in two or three days.

The lawmakers then would adjourn until early next year, they said.

The legislature called its summer recess Aug. 1 after seven months of deliberations that produced only slightly more than 150 new laws. The total was lower than others in recent years, but not unusual considering the political split between the legislative and executive branches.

House Finance Chairman Myrl Shoemaker, D-88 Bournerville, said he expected action today by his panel on a

State layoffs still rising

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Twenty-four investigators will be laid off by the Bureau of Workmen's Compensation later this month as the administration of Gov. James A. Rhodes continues to chip away at the state payroll.

More than 1,100 state employees have been laid off since Rhodes took office last January. The governor ordered a 2 per cent cutback in all departments last July to compensate for a state budget which he said was underfunded.

"These layoffs are due directly to the failure of the General Assembly to simply meet the Bureau's continuation payroll," BWC Deputy Administrator Philip A. Workman said in a statement Tuesday.

The Democratic-controlled legislature, which returns to begin a special session today, is expected to fuel the growing dispute. Legislative leaders say they will ask for the appointment of a select committee to investigate the hiring and firing practices of the Rhodes administration.

The Department of Natural Resources laid off 167 employees last week and the Commerce Department dropped 27 workers, cutting its Consumer Protection Division in half.

24 millionaires didn't pay taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twenty-four American millionaires managed to avoid paying a penny in federal taxes in one recent year, according to Internal Revenue Service data released by a member of Congress.

Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, said in a House speech Tuesday that seven of the millionaires had a total adjusted gross income of $17,783,008, an average of $2.54 million per person.

"There were also 17 (other) millionaires who avoided any tax after calculating their tax deductions and credits," according to IRS information for 1973, Vanik said. He did not identify the millionaires or explain the tactics they had used.

In addition, there were "54 individuals with adjusted gross incomes of between $500,000 and $1 million who paid no federal income tax and 292 individuals with adjusted gross income of between $200,000 and $500,000 who paid no individual income tax."

Vanik, a member of the taxwriting and a 75-car antibusing motorcade, banned by police, was broken up. A firebomb was found and destroyed in South Boston.

Police reported at least 18 arrests Tuesday and Tuesday night.

Mayor Kevin H. White earlier said such nighttime incidents were "criminal, provocative, indefensible acts of hooligans and they will not be tolerated."

The second day of classes went smoothly at nearly all the city's 162 schools. "The general climate in the schools is excellent," said School Supt. Marion Fahey.

About 65 per cent of the city's 75,000 public school pupils were in class Tuesday, up from just under 59 per cent when classes began Monday. Police said eight arrests were made near the schools, most for disorderly conduct, bringing the two-day arrest total to 98.

Three hundred Charlestown mothers, many pushing baby carriages and strollers, marched through the streets Tuesday to protest forced busing, which was implemented in Charlestown this year for the first time.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Gov. Julian Carroll says he would like to relieve about 1,000 National Guardsmen "very soon" of their peace-keeping duties in Jefferson County, where they were assigned after destructive weekend anti-busing protests.

School officials reported rising attendance and relative calm Tuesday, the fourth day of court-ordered busing to integrate the merged city-county system.

Carroll, who visited members of the guard and state police he sent to restore order, said the situation "looks real good."

The governor was greeted by shouts of, "We want to go home," when he entered one room where guardsmen were standing by at the National Guard Armory.

"We'll get you home as soon as we can," Carroll said as he circulated among the men and shook some hands. "When you do get home, nobody will be gladder than I am, because I didn't want to send you here in the first place."

Carroll said he would ask the federal government to pay the costs of sending the guard and state police to Louisville. "I will personally file a claim in the United States Claims Court," he said.

The governor sent the guard to Jefferson County early Saturday morning after a night of violent demonstrations during which more than 200 persons were arrested. The arrest total grew to more than 500 during the weekend.

Carroll said he would ask the federal government to pay the costs of sending the guard and state police to Louisville. "I will personally file a claim in the United States Claims Court," he said.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks fell .39 to 44.61. National Kinney, the Amex volume leader, was unchanged at 3 1/4 in trading marked by a 37,200-share block at that price.

Greater beach dangers

The avalanche of publicity about the movie "Jaws" has fostered a certain skittishness among ocean beachgoers. Many venturing into the surf have been observed to cast apprehensive glances at those walls of green water, as if half expecting to see a great, fanged shape looming there.

The experts tend to suggest that this nervous wariness about sharks with a yen to gulp down swimmers as though they were sardines is misplaced. There are greater dangers, they agree - less dramatic and chilling, perhaps, but likelier causes of injury and death to beachgoers.

As to sharks, the statistics are comforting: reportedly there were only 22 authenticated shark bite cases in offshore waters from North Carolina to Boston between 1865 to 1962, for example, 9 of them fatal. The sting ray, it seems, causes a lot more trouble - not because he's looking for it, but because he instinctively strikes with his poisonous barbed spine when disturbed. The sting ray may cause a serious puncture wound, and as one expert put it "a massive dose of the poison will cause shock and heart failure."

So watch out for sting rays, which are much more common than sharks in shallow waters. Also jelly fish - especially the Portuguese man-of-war, whose poisonous stingers cause a painful irritation which may bring on severe shock.

Far and away the greatest danger to beachgoers is drowning. To get some idea of the relative hazard, compare the above shark-bite figures with the drowning toll for one year alone: 8,100 deaths in 1974. Besides, whereas getting hit by a shark is almost entirely a matter of chance, precautions can be taken against drowning. A healthy respect for the ocean, with due regard to undertow and tricky offshore currents and one's strength as a swimmer, does much to reduce the chances of becoming an addition to the beach fatality statistics.

THESE DAYS.... By John Chamberlain

What will happen if peace breaks out?

Washington has been Dullsville this summer, and the boys at the National Press Club have lamented it. They have come to think a Watergate scandal every year is theirs by right. What will be the fate of investigative reporting if the digging — or, to put it more accurately, the leaks — turn up nothing more exciting than trivia about the CIA, an organization that is actually feared by nobody of consequence either inside the U.S. or abroad?

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 11

ARIES

(March 21 to April 20)

Some unexpected changes indicated. Do not be dismayed. They should prove beneficial in the long run, so stress your adaptability, willingness to cooperate.

TAURUS

(April 21 to May 21)

You should encounter few obstacles now, but be on guard against "little" errors, miscalculations.

GEMINI

(May 22 to June 21)

Keeps things moving, and with well-planned design. A "wait and see" attitude could only stifle enthusiasm on this somewhat problematic day.

CANCER

(June 22 to July 23)

Stellar influences indicate a day of successful moves and plans, but all will require know-how, diligence and painstaking care. Don't launch into uncharted seas.

LEO

(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Double-check plans. Work out business deals, all agreements with deliberation, ascertaining facts beforehand. Attainments now will spark more gains in the future.

VIRGO

(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

This day could have its sizzling moments. You will do well to maintain an even, systematic pace and procedure, no matter what pressures may be put upon you.

LIBRA

(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

A situation out of the past may resurface and you may have to deal again with a problem you considered solved once and forever. Don't become anxious. You will emerge a stronger person.

SCORPIO

(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

Certain members of the family may seem to be hypersensitive, on the brink of serious rifts. Try to smooth out their differences — but with the utmost diplomacy.

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

Day could find you the recipient of some special recognition, perhaps a gift or bonus of some kind. Whatever, there is definite public reaction to your efforts.

CAPRICORN

(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Mixed influences. Day calls for your stamina, stick-to-itiveness, good will and ability to help yourself and others out of undesirable situations.

AQUARIUS

(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

You may be able to put over a good deal, conclude a profitable agreement. At least, steps toward such ends can be initiated. But don't press; maneuver cautiously.

PISCES

(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Launching into uncharted seas may take you further than expected, into waters too deep for comfort. Check before going beyond your depth.

YOU BORN TODAY are a highly affable individual who makes many friends in life — and keep them. You have a delightful sense of humor and are insatiable in your quest for knowledge. Endowed with a gift for words, you would make an outstanding writer. Brilliant in argument and debate, you could also excel as a lawyer or statesman. Unlike many Virgoans, you may not care for business as a career but, if forced into it by circumstances, could make a good go of it through your persistence, patience and willingness to work hard at anything you undertake. You are very exacting — with yourself and others. Try to curb a tendency toward censoriousness and disillusionment when others do not live up to your lofty ideals.

The fact that the Capitol Hill and White House press corps have been scratching for news should be accepted with great joy by everybody outside the District of Columbia. This does not mean that the outer world has been relieved of the many specters that it has come to take for granted. Even here, however, there are omens which should please everybody save the professionals who live by reporting the uses of the sword.

The brightest thing on the horizon is, of course, the Egyptian-Israeli interim peace agreement. This doesn't mean that Israel is out of the woods. But without active support from Egypt's President Anwar Sadat, the Syrians and the Palestine liberationists are not likely to go to war over the Golan Heights or the Jordan River's West Bank.

Henry Kissinger's triumph, which seemed wholly illusory a few weeks ago, will not last forever, but if three years of peace have been attained, it will at least permit some other things to work themselves out.

The crisis in Portugal is another thing that gives promise of fading into something less than an Apocalypse. Communist leader Alvaro Cunhal, thinking he had learned something from Chile, had, apparently, decided his party had sufficiently penetrated the armed forces to impose a proletarian dictatorship on Portugal despite the wishes of everybody from the Socialists to the rightists. Well, the military in Portugal has been considerably radicalized by the unsuccessful effort to keep colonialism going in Mozambique and Angola. But army men, though they may have absorbed Marxist thinking, have their own ideas over power.

Why, if Portugal is to go to the left, should they be mere tools of Communist Party functionaries? The colonels now rule in Peru without benefit of Moscow. Maybe Portugal will be lucky enough to get a coalition government with the Socialists and other moderate parties having something to say. But if it must be dictatorships in Portugal, it begins to look as though the army, not the Kremlin, will have first crack at it.

The news from Portuguese Angola is, of course, foreboding. But the decision of South African Prime Minister John Vorster to press for a southern African "detent" has had its effect. True enough, the recent conference at the Zambezi River between the Rhodesian whites and the supporters of black majority rule came to nothing. But the important thing is that Zambia's President Kenneth Kaunda, speaking for the more responsible blacks, and South Africa's Vorster are, like Henry Kissinger, committed to a second try.

The truth is that Zambia and Malawi, two landed-locked black countries, are in no position to sit by while chaos takes over in Rhodesia. With Portuguese Angola being torn to pieces by three rival black factions, and with Mozambique in turmoil, Zambia can't get its copper easily to the world. Like Zaire, Zambia has had to ship its copper through Rhodesia and South Africa. Malawi has also been dependent on South African rail links.

South Africa, which is committed to solving its "race" problem by spinning off a whole patchwork quilt of self-governing black enclaves, desperately wants a Rhodesian-Zambian "detent" in order to gain time for its own purposes. So Vorster has practically told Prime Minister Ian Smith of Rhodesia that he must work out some compromise with the black Bishop Abel Muzorewa. And Zambia's Kaunda has been in Vorster's corner.

The yearning for peace has not had much encouragement in recent years. But it is growing stronger in unlikely places. If the Middle East and Portugal and southern Africa can all manage to sidestep crisis, even the extremists in the talk shop of the UN may be prevailed upon to pipe down.

It won't be good for journalists who batten on trouble. But there is never a news vacuum, and if the world at large moves toward peace it could be a great day for the renascence of local at-home reporting.

Beer proving highly popular

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Barriers and distributors in the Cleveland area agree that beer, traditionally the working man's drink, is more popular than ever.

William Eaton, sales manager of Knall Beverage Inc., said his beer sales have gone up about 25 per cent in the last two years.

"Our best seller today is the 12-pack carryout," he said. "You can buy it for $3.35. Five years ago it cost $2.50."

"That's not much of a rise when you consider how all other prices have jumped."

"I think people are going more for this carryout pack because they're entertaining more at home. That's where the recession comes in."

He said he feels that more young people are drinking beer "because the popularity of marijuana has tapered off."

Walter Pisorn, part owner of the Harbor Inn in the Flats, says his beer sales are up "about 20 per cent in the last six months."

"Two years ago I used to sell 15 cases of Strohs a week. Now I sell 30. And Rolling Rock went from 10 cases a week to 25 cases."

"My imported beer sales really jumped lately, by about 50 per cent."

Pisorn has no idea why beer drinking has boomed but says he doesn't think

"it has anything to do with the recession. When almost everybody around here was out of work a few months ago we had more business than ever before."

"The guys said they didn't have anything else to do."

A bartender at the Keg & Quarter, where whisky is still the main staple, attributed the beer boom to tighter money. "A lot of people don't have the buck and a half for a drink anymore," he said. "They'd rather have two beers for $1.70."

In the last five months, he said, sales of Budweiser have risen from about 10 cases a week to 16.

Thomas Cato, vice president at John's Beverage Distributing Co. of Maple Heights, said sales of Genesee beer, his big brand, are up 20 per cent.

"I attribute a lot of the increase to the cost of pop," he said. "Pop has gone crazy. You can buy a case of beer with the throwaway bottles for about the same price as a case of pop."

Injuries prove fatal

DRYING OFFERS ANOTHER WAY TO PRESERVE FOODS

Back a generation or two before freezing became popular, drying was a favorite way to preserve fruits and vegetables for use during the winter months. It was a way of dehydrating foods known long before commercially dehydrated foods became generally available.

Even today, some homemakers like to dry some of their fruits and vegetables instead of canning or freezing them, perhaps because they like them dried or they have a shortage of canning lids or freezer space. Regardless of the reason, here are some pointers on drying foods from Evelyn Gray, Extension nutritionist at the Ohio State University.

Choose for drying fruits and vegetables that are fresh, ripe, and sound — just right for table use. Decay on one slice of apple or mold on one bean may give bad flavor to a tray full.

Wash food well; get off every trace of dirt, spray or insecticide.

You can buy trays or make them. If trays have a wire surface such as oven racks, cover with cotton netting so food won't stick, and so shredded or tiny pieces won't slip through. Metal trays cannot be used in sulfurizing.

Preheat oven 15 minutes before drying time. Set regulator at 150, 200, or 250 degrees F.

Set one oven rack about 3-inches from the oven floor and the other rack, if there are two, just far enough above for two trays to be stacked between. don't turn on the top unit in an electric oven. If necessary, remove it.

If it's an electric oven, keep the door closed while it warms. If it's a gas oven, open at the top about 8 inches while it preheats.

Spread food evenly, 1 to 2 pounds to each tray. Lighter loads dry faster. While drying, the temperature should stay about 150 degrees F. If you can't keep oven heat down to 150 degrees, open the door a little wider.

Temperature and air flow are not the same everywhere in an oven. Trays nearest the oven ceiling and floor dry fastest. About every half hour, take each stack out. If food is more than one layer deep on a tray, stir or turn pieces so they can dry evenly. Every hour or two, reverse trays in each stack, making upper tray serve as lower. Most vegetables takes 4 to 12 hours to dry; fruits, 6 hours or longer.

When food seems done, take a sample out; cool it. Test according to the dry table.

Food that overheats near the end of drying will scorch easily. If pieces around tray edges dry first, take them right out. When the rest of the food meets dry-enough test, turn off heat.

Cool the food, then package at once. Fill containers as tightly as possible without crushing the food. Glass jars, the sort used in home canning, are especially good for dried foods. Fruits well dried will keep a year or longer. Dried food is best soon after it is opened.

Apples and other light-colored fruits tend to darken in drying and storage. Working indoors, soak fruit 15 minutes in a solution of 3½ tablespoons potassium metabisulfite or sodium sulfite to 1 gallon water. If you can't buy either of these locally, a druggist may order them for you. Don't be concerned if sulfured food has a strong odor or taste when dried. The taste disappears during cooking.

Store in dry, cool place to hold food value and flavor. Dark storage helps dried food keep its color and flavor. Examine dried food in storage occasionally. If you find signs of moisture, heat the food again to 150 degrees F. for 15 minutes and repackaging.

Before you begin drying food, you should know: (1) Oven drying is small-scale drying. An oven can take 4 to 8 pounds — preferably 6 — of a prepared fruit or vegetable at one drying load. It takes most of a day for the load to dry. (2) Oven drying is a watchman's job. Never go off and leave food drying in an oven. If trays should catch fire, turn off the heat and close the oven door.

The following foods, preparation for drying and dryness test are as follows:

APPLES — Pare, core and cut in ¼ inch slices or rings. Sulfur outdoors 30 minutes, or dip in solution. Spread not more than ½ inch deep on trays — overlap rings. — Pliable, springy feel creamy white.

PEACHES — Peel if desired. Cut in halves, remove pits. Sulfur outdoors, peeled 30 minutes, unpeeled 2 to 3 hours, or dip in solution, or precook. Dry pit side up. — Pliable and leathery.

PLUMS — Same for prunes. Use freestone kinds. Sulfuring 20 to 25 minutes helps them to keep better. — Pliable and leathery.

BEANS, SNAP — Trim and slice lengthwise or cut in 1-inch pieces. Steam about 20 minutes or until tender but firm. Spread about ½ inch deep on rays. — Brittle, dark green to brownish.

CARROTS — Steam whole about 20 minutes, or until tender but firm. Scrape or peel. Slice crosswise ½ inch thick or dice in ¼ inch cubes. Or shred before steaming. Spread not more than ½ inch deep on trays. — Very brittle, deep orange.

CORN — Husk. Trim. Steam on cob until the milk is set, about 15 minutes. Cut from the cob. Spread one-half inch deep. — Shatters when hit with a hammer.

ONIONS — Peel, slice into ½ inch rings. Steam 5 to 10 minutes. If dried for seasoning, do not steam. (Onions require temperature not above 135 deg. F.) — Very crisp.

SQUASH, SUMMER AND ZUCCHINI — Trim, slice ¼ inch thick without peeling, steam 6 to 8 minutes or until just tender. Spread thinly and evenly on tray. — Leathery to brittle yellow.

MRS. ROBERTS OLINGER

Former Fayette County resident married in Xenia church

Miss Mary Elizabeth Kratzer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Roy Kratzer of 336 Port William Rd., and Robert George Olinger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Olinger of 2527 Ohio Rt. 134, Wilmington, former residents of Washington C.H., were married Saturday afternoon in the North Side Christian Church in Xenia. The bridegroom is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Charles V. Sexton, 905 N. North St.

Two branch candelabra and two baskets of orange gladioli, gold and bronze mums were in front of the altar. Mr. Isaac Florea, minister of the church officiated for the double-ring ceremony at 2:30 p.m.

Mrs. William Duncan, organist, and Howard Hill Jr., also of Xenia, brother-in-law of the bride, was the vocalis. Preceding the ceremony he sang "We've Only Just Begun," "If," "I Won't Last a Day Without You," and "If I Could Save Time in a Bottle." The "Lord's Prayer" was sung as the couple knelt at the kneeling bench.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a gown of whipped crepe fashioned by her mother. The gown was designed with an open mandarin collar, Bishop sleeves with wide cuffs, empire waistline and semi-sifted skirt trimmings with scalloped lace and seeded pearls. The lace extended the length of the chapel train. Her chapel mantilla was bordered in the same scalloped lace and seeded pearls as that of the gown. She carried a cascade of white gardenias, orange sweetheart roses, baby's breath and ivy.

Mrs. Richard Wolfe of Wilmington, matron of honor for her sister, wore an orange dress which she fashioned. The other attendants, Mrs. Phillip Floyd and Mrs. John Faul of Wilmington, wore chocolate brown dresses styled by the bride. Their polyester knit dresses had round necklines, Bishop sleeves with wide cuffs, gathered empire waistlines with self tying belt in the back. Three verticle rows of ruffled lace and ribbon accented the front of the skirts and on the bibbed bodices. They all wore wide-brimmed white hats with bows matching their dresses and carried natural wicker baskets of autumn dried flowers.

Miss Karen Wolfe, flower girl, and niece of the bride, wore an orange dress. Birthday party given for Paul girls

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Paul were hosts at two birthday parties recently, honoring their daughters, Pam, who was six, and Roxie, who was seven years-old. Assisting the Pauls were Mrs. Faye Dean, Mrs. Betty Moore, Mrs. Carmelia East and Mrs. David Blakeley.

Mrs. Bonnie Moore, the little girls' aunt, presented each girl with a "Scooby Doo" designed cake which she had baked and decorated.

Games were won by all of the children present, and flavors of coloring books were given to them.

After "Happy Birthday" was sung to both girls, and they opened their pretty gifts, cake and ice cream were served to the honored guests: Mr. and Mrs. Budd Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Moore, Mike and Amy, Mrs. Mary E. Floyd, Mr. and Mrs. Goble Dean, Mary, Valerie, Tim, Tam, Robbie and Diane Dean, Mrs. Carmelia East and Michelle, Mrs. David Blakeley, Beth and Tater.

Miss Michele Davis brought devotions, and read the 'Love' chapter Corinthians 13, and Dr. Jordan gave the closing prayer.

Mrs. John Schiller provided entertainment. The next meeting will be October 4, and hostesses will be Mrs. Opal Ruth and Mrs. Grant Whiteside. Mrs. Howard Brooks will provide entertainment.

NEW ADDITION — The final cavalry charge was a major new addition to the 1975 version of the outdoor drama "Tecumseh!" at the Sugarloaf Mountain amphitheater near Chillicothe.

Attendance nears 60,000 mark

'Tecumseh!' crowds shatter record

CHILLICOTHE — The outdoor bicentennial drama "Tecumseh!" attracted audiences of 58,927 for the 1975 season at the Sugarloaf Mountain amphitheater near Chillicothe. The attendance figure top the drama's 1974 total by 26 per cent and are the largest attendance figures ever logged by an Ohio outdoor drama.

"There are no final totals on our gate receipts as of yet," explained Allen Witt, promotions director, "but we are hoping that we may have gained enough funds to pay off a few of our outstanding debts."

"Tecumseh!" which is produced by the non-profit Scioto Society, was created for the purpose of establishing a tourist industry in the Ross, Pike, and Pickaway county area of southern Ohio. That goal has been achieved, according to Witt. The total economic impact on southern Ohio should be near the $7 million mark for the summer of 1975.

Planning has already begun for the 1976 "Tecumseh!" season. The drama will begin on June 21 and continue a full 11 weeks, closing on September 4. It is hoped that this will allow us to deal more effectively with the huge crowds expected for the bicentennial," Witt explained.

"Tecumseh!" a sister drama, "Trumpet in the Land," reported audiences in the neighborhood of 32,000 for its season. This represents a six per cent increase for the New Philadelphia-based drama.

These figures, combined with other reported increases from Americas other 42 outdoor dramas, establish a trend that can not be ignored, according to Witt. "Outdoor drama is becoming an established art form. We have a regular, and dependable audience. For instance, audience members have returned to "Tecumseh!" as often as eleven times in a single season. Other families have set about visiting all of the Outdoor Dramas in the U.S. Our fans are just as avid as those for any football team, and their numbers are growing every year."

"Our only major problem now is dealing with the increasing demand for our product. Our parking and ticket facilities must be expanded before 1976 for instance. There is $500,000 worth of work that will be mandatory on the Amphitheatre facility in the next three years to increase handling and comfort of audiences," Witt said.

Welfare rolls show drop

WASHINGTON (AP) — Welfare rolls dipped slightly in May for the first time in nearly a year and cash payments also declined, signaling a turnaround in the nation's economy, according to government figures released today.

A total of 11,357,442 persons were drawing Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) benefits, down 11,607 or .1 per cent from April.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare said this was the first decrease since rising unemployment began pushing AFDC rolls upward in August 1974.

HEW said May cash payments to AFDC recipients amounted to $735.7 million, down $6.2 million or .9 per cent from the previous month and the first drop since May 1974.

As another indication of economic recovery, the department announced that 21 of the 25 states paying AFDC to families headed by jobless fathers recorded May decreases ranging from less than 1 per cent to more than 17 per cent.

A total of 512,597 persons in families headed by unemployed fathers drew May welfare benefits averaging $288 per family, or 2.8 per cent less than a month earlier.

Hamilton voters reject dam levy

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) — Hamilton voters Tuesday overwhelmingly turned down a proposed 1.24-mill tax levy for construction of a $1.3 million low dam in the Great Miami River.

The issue was rejected by nearly a 2-1 margin, with 6,803 voting "no" and 3,522 voting for the levy. The issue needed an affirmative vote of 55 per cent for passage.

The levy passed in only four of the city's 36 precincts. If approved the levy would have run five years to finance construction of a low dam to maintain a pool of water in the river during dry periods.

Glenn promotes natural gas bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, introduced legislation Tuesday which he said could help alleviate the short-term natural gas crisis expected this winter.

The bill would allow a temporary, partial lifting of price controls on interstate gas pipelines serving distressed areas, earmark newly found gas from offshore wells to the gas-short states and empower the Federal Energy Administration to order electric power plants to convert to coal or fuel oil.

Glenn said that several bills have been introduced in the Congress to alleviate the long-term gas problem, but the short-term problem has not been faced.

"We are on the brink of an unemployment disaster of unknown, but extremely serious proportions," Glenn said. "That emergency can no longer be written off as imaginary or way down the road."

Former WCH woman accepts production manager's post

COLUMBUS — Carol Witherspoon, formerly of Washington C.H. and an employee of WLWC-TV in Columbus since 1967, has been promoted to the position of production manager for the Columbus television station.

Miss Witherspoon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard R. Witherspoon, 726 Yeoman St., will be replacing Ken Trinkle, who has accepted a position as operations manager for WIX-TV in Columbia, S.C.

A native of Washington C.H. and a graduate of Washington High School, Miss Witherspoon began her affiliation with WLWC-TV as a film clerk in the film department. In 1970, she was promoted to producer-director where she served as producer for the local Emmy award winning show "I'll See You in Court," along with the more recent successes of "Help Thy Neighbor," and "Great Day at the Fair."

Fined: Another one of Miss Witherspoon's broadcasting careers highlights came in 1972 when she was selected as one of the "outstanding young women in America."

In September, 1974, Miss Witherspoon became facilities supervisor before accepting her present position.

Miss Witherspoon holds a bachelor of arts degree in speech from Miami University in Oxford.

Water short for school

CARDINGTON, Ohio (AP) — Cardington schools will remain closed another four or five days because of a water shortage brought about when pressure dropped at the community's six shallow wells.

William Hack, sanitarian for the Morrow County Health Department, said a new well was undergoing test pumping and "looks promising." He said it would be a few days before it could be put into production.

Adding to the problems was a malfuction on a main line pump that left the community virtually without water.

Hack said maintenance is continuing on the supply system and the community is looking for other sources of water outside its boundaries to avoid shortages in the future.

About 1,300 students around Cardington are out of school because of the shortage. Cardington is a village of 1,800, six miles south of the county seat, Mount Gilead.

By The Associated Press

Ohio spent another clear, cool night with temperatures at daybreak ranging from 42 in Youngstown and Toledo to 56 in Cincinnati.

A cool high pressure area centered over Pennsylvania this morning was responsible for the cool temperatures. This high was to drift eastward today with southerly winds bringing warmer temperatures to Ohio today and tonight.

Low pressure developing in the central part of the country was to move eastward spreading clouds and a chance of showers over the state tonight.

The showers and possible thundershowers were to become more likely Thursday as the system pushes closer to Ohio.

Sunshine and southerly winds were to bring a fine day to the state today. Highs were forecast to reach the 70s and low 80s with lows tonight falling into the upper 50s and low 60s.

Highs Thursday will be similar to today's with increased humidities.

A chance of showers Friday, mostly fair Saturday and Sunday. Highs in the low 70s in northern Ohio and 75 to 80 in the south. Lows near 60 early Friday and in the 50s Saturday and Sunday.

Inmate indicted for con game

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A Franklin County grand jury has indicted a prison inmate on two counts of grand theft, accusing him of operating a bogus publishing scheme from behind prison bars.

Darrell W. Casady, 29, who is serving a 3-32 year sentence for robbery and possession of burglary tools, pleaded innocent to the charges last week. No trial date has been set.

The indictment lists 153 persons who allegedly were bilked into subscribing at $1 apiece to a nonexistent magazine Casady promoted from his cell.

The indictment also said a northern Ohio newspaper, the Lorain Journal, ran a full-page advertisement for the magazine under promise of payment of $50, which was never paid.

Malpractice policies end

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Officials of the Aetna Life & Casualty Co. said Tuesday the firm will stop writing malpractice insurance in Ohio on Dec. 1 because of heavy company losses.

The decision will affect about 1,000 doctors, the officials said.

Harold M. Richter, casualty general manager for northern Ohio said the company lost about $1 million in its malpractice insurance business last year.

"We stayed in the business until

The indictment said Casady tried to sell subscriptions to a magazine called PACE (Penal Action for Correctional Education), promising articles written by inmates, guards, prison officials, judges, lawyers, police, prosecutors and parole officials.

Advertisements for the magazine offered coupons redeemable for free merchandise. The Lorain Journal advertisement offered coupons for five gallons of gasoline, two lightbulbs and a jar of coffee for the $1 subscription.

Ohio Highway Patrol investigators said an Oberlin woman became an unwitting accomplice after answering a classified advertisement asking for a "pen pals" for inmates at the Chillicothe Correctional Institution where Casady was imprisoned.

The patrol said Sheila Hagerty, 18, believed Casady was going to publish the magazine in the prison compound. Officers said she put up $175 to buy the first ad for the magazine and another $30 to open a checking account in the name of Clearing House Publishers.

Investigators said of the $153 received, Miss Hagerty forwarded $140 to Casady to cover costs.

Officers said she realized something was wrong when subscribers complained that they had not received their magazine and the newspaper began asking for payment on its ad.

A spokesman for the county prosecutor's office said Miss Hagerty apparently was an unwitting victim and would not be prosecuted.

Clubhouse 22

FEATURED GUESTS — Slated to attend Saturday's fund-raising carnival at Eyman Park are Duffy the Dog and Joe of the Clubhouse 22 television show and John W. Brown, president of the Ohio Leukemia Society. All are to arrive early Saturday and stay until about noon. They will be

This year's event to be held at Eyman Park

special guests of the Leroy Crabtree family, sponsors of the carnival. Ten-year-old Julie Beth Crabtree has battled leukemia for the past four years and was Ohio's 1972 poster girl.

Leukemia carnival slated

By GEORGE MALEK

Spurred by spectacular success last year with a backyard fund-raising carnival, the Leroy Crabtree family and their friends will sponsor daylong activities at Eyman Park Saturday for the benefit of the Leukemia Society of America.

The Crabtrees, who reside in Lakewood Hills, raised $350 for the leukemia society last fall by having a carnival at their home. The figure probably could have been much higher, but the family ran out of prizes in mid-afternoon and several persons remarked that they did not attend because they were unable to find a parking space.

In hopes of raising even more money this year, the family requested permission to sponsor a fair at Eyman Park. Friends of the family and local merchants donated prizes, baked goods, gift items and their talents. The schedule of activities grew to the point where the carnival promises to be one of the most "professional" amateur fairs in the area.

Former Ohio Lt. Gov. John W. Brown, president of the Ohio Leukemia Society, asked to attend, and children's favorite, "Duffy the Dog," from the Clubhouse 22 (WKEF-TV in Dayton) television show will also be a guest. Local musicians will provide live music throughout the afternoon.

No one in the community is more aware of the work done by the Leukemia Society than 10-year-old Julie Beth Crabtree. Stricken by the blood disease in 1971, she was not expected to live more than a few months.

However, aided by drugs developed by leukemia society's research foundation, Julie Beth has successfully battled the dread disease for more than four years. No cure has yet been found, but continuing research, there is hope.

Maintaining an expert research staff is expensive, but the Crabtrees know that without it, their daughter would not be with them now. Helping to raise funds for the Leukemia Society is their way of saying "thank you" to the foundation for the past four years.

CARNIVAL ACTIVITIES will begin at 9 a.m. and continue until 6 p.m. A wide variety offers something for children and parents alike.

While children will be eager to meet Duffy the Dog and Joe, hosts of the Clubhouse 22 show, parents are more likely to introduce themselves to Brown, a Republican leader who served as lieutenant governor of Ohio for more than a decade. Both are expected to arrive at the park about 10:30 a.m. They will stay for approximately an hour.

Carnival games, a puppet show and a variety of foods will entertain children. Refreshments will include soft drinks, cotton candy, homemade waffles, barbecue sandwiches and candy.

Parents may visit the farmers' market, the bake sale and "Minnie Pearl's" gift shop, which will feature a variety of homemade and handmade items as well as donations from local residents.

Hog dogs are, perhaps, America's favorite food, and Robert L. Kunz, Fayette Memorial Hospital administrator, has volunteered to be chef-of-the-day and man the grill.

"Local response to the carnival has been tremendous," Mrs. Crabtree said.

"Contributions have exceeded our wildest expectation, and if any prizes or gifts remain after the carnival, we will hold a yard sale the following weekend," she said. All proceeds from the carnival and the yard sale will go to the Leukemia Society.

In addition to the parking spaces at the park, cars will be allowed to use the parking lot at the Washington Park Association swimming pool on Oakland Avenue.

Needless to say, the president of Leukemia Society does not attend each carnival held throughout the state. He has offered to attend this carnival because he and the Crabtrees are close friends.

They met in 1972 when Julie Beth was selected as the Ohio poster girl. She was trying to overcome an attack of the disease at the time, and Brown was very impressed with her courage. Their relationship grew over the ensuing years.

The disease surfaces without warning and for no apparent reason. Julie Beth has had several reoccurrences during the past four years, but her own spirit and the medical assistance of the leukemia society have thus far been victorious.

Marijuana issue on Oxford ballot

OXFORD, Ohio (AP) — Mike Avey, a 27-year-old law student, wants Oxford to become Ohio's first city to decriminalize marijuana.

And despite vigorous opposition, he's not letting his two-year crusade go up in smoke.

The issue goes on the ballot Nov. 4 and Avey is busy recruiting support from Miami of Ohio students who could hold the key to the project. He is concentrating on getting Miami students registered to vote by the Oct. 6 voter registration deadline.

"If they—the students—find out they can decriminalize marijuana, then they'll do something about housing problems," said Avey.

Avey's legal struggle has ended up on the ballot in the form of a city ordinance which would make "casual" possession—four ounces or less—an offense comparable to a parking violation. The offender would be fined $5.

Oxford Police Chief Joseph Statum feels that the proposed marijuana ordinance is unconstitutional. Oxford Law Director Robert Piper said passage of the ordinance would leave local police in a dilemma of deciding whether to enforce a state statute or the lesser local law.

The present state law makes the possession of less than 3.5 ounces of marijuana an offense punishable by no more than a $100 fine with no prison sentence allowable.

Judge Cramer said the new state drug law and the proposed marijuana ordinance do not radically differ because both create a dividing point for casual possession. He contends the $95 difference in maximum fine is not grounds enough to make the proposed ordinance unconstitutional.

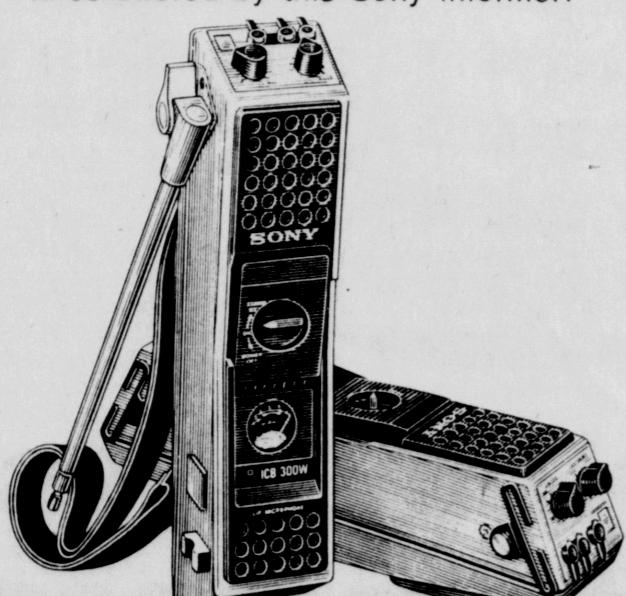

Butler County Prosecutor John Holcomb has already lost one round in his fight to keep the issue off the ballot. He said he will challenge the constitutionality of the marijuana issue if voters approve it.

Jurors return guilty verdict in drug sale

Jurors determined Tuesday in Fayette County Common Pleas Court that the involvement of Randy E. Payton in an alleged drug sale between two other persons was sufficient to warrant a verdict of guilty on a drug trafficking charge.

Payton, 18, of 522 Peddicord Ave., was found guilty of sale of marijuana after jurors deliberated more than an hour. He acted as a "go-between" for two other persons in the alleged sale.

Testimony at the trial by prosecution and defense witness alike showed that Payton had been asked by undercover agent Tom Vollberg of the Ohio attorney general's office if he knew where the agent could obtain marijuana.

The defendant testified that he accompanied Vollberg to the home of a Bloomingburg youth, providing directions to the house. He then went to the door and spoke briefly with the resident.

A few minutes later, the youth came out of the house carrying a bag of marijuana. He handed it to the agent and said he would sell it for $20. Vollberg made the purchase and left. Payton testified that he received no profit from the transaction and did not use or touch the marijuana sold.

The testimony of each of the witnesses was essentially the same.

In his closing arguments, Fayette County prosecuting attorney James A. Kiger said the evidence clearly indicated that Payton aided in the sale. Without the defendant's participation, the sale would never have been consummated, he said.

Under Ohio law, anyone aiding or abetting in the commission of a crime is subject to the same punishment as a principle offender.

Defense attorney Andrew Dennison of Cincinnati argued that Payton's role in the transaction was very minor and was insufficient to warrant a conviction under the outline and intent of the law.

He noted that Payton in no way initiated or solicited the sale, but rather responded only to inquiries of the agent. Neither he nor co-counselor Robert Simpson of Washington C.H. contested the facts in evidence — they contested a finding of guilty based on such "minor" involvement.

Judge Evelyn W. Coffman thanked the jury for its attentiveness throughout the two-day trial and dismissed the jurors at 2:30 p.m.

She suggested a pre-sentence investigation of the defendant who faces a prison term of up to 40 years.

Seated on the jury were Donald Crabtree, foreman, Robert Agle, Robert Moore, Jane Grim, Paul Murphy, Kenneth Faulkner, Beth Wilson, Carroll Ritenour, Kay Ritenour, Lowell Hollis, Thelma Everhart and Roger Steen. The alternate juror was Foster Kelley.

Teacher contract talks continue

By The Associated Press
Teachers in New York and Chicago, two of the nation's largest school systems, remained on strike today while contract negotiations continued.

All public schools in Chicago were closed. In New York, a school board spokesman said the system was shut down for all practical purposes, although some schools opened for small numbers of students.

Other strikes closed schools or curtailed classes in dozens of smaller cities across the nation.

Teachers in New York City defied a state judge who ordered them back to work. "The strike will go on," declared Albert Shanker, president of the AFL-CIO United Federation of Teachers.

The city's 67,000 teachers struck at midnight Monday when their contract expired after the first day of classes. The union and the school board resumed negotiations Tuesday night, but Shanker predicted a long strike.

The New York public school system, with 1.1 million pupils and 950 schools, is the largest in the nation. On Tuesday, about 37,000 pupils showed up for class, but most were sent home.

In Chicago, a week-old strike gave the 530,000 pupils in the nation's third largest school system an extended summer vacation. None of the city's 660 schools has opened for fall classes.

In New York, where teachers earned $9,700 to $20,350 last year, the salary scale was not a strike issue.

Instead, in that metropolis which has stumbled from one financial crisis to another, negotiators were bogged down on working conditions. Teachers fought against school board attempts to enlarge classes, reduced preparation time and sick leaves and eliminate sabbaticals.

Chicago's eight city colleges, with a total enrollment of 90,000, also remained closed. In connection with that strike, Norman Swenson, president of the Cook County Teachers Union, on Tuesday was ordered jailed for five months after refusing to obey a back-to-work order issued by a Circuit Court judge.

In other teachers' strikes:

—130,000 pupils were affected by strikes in 29 school districts in Pennsylvania.

—Strikes in 10 Rhode Island communities affected a total of 60,000 pupils Tuesday.

—In the San Francisco Bay area, Berkeley and San Jose teachers remained on strike, Oakland teachers scheduled a strike vote and San Francisco teachers considered taking a strike vote.

—All 15,000 pupils were out of class in the Clover Park School District in Tacoma, Wash.

—55 per cent of the 15,000 pupils in Wilmington, Del., showed up for classes Tuesday, but only 18 per cent of the 720 teachers were on the job.

—All schools were closed in Hoboken, N.J., which has 9,000 public school pupils. Teachers in two smaller New Jersey school systems also were on strike.

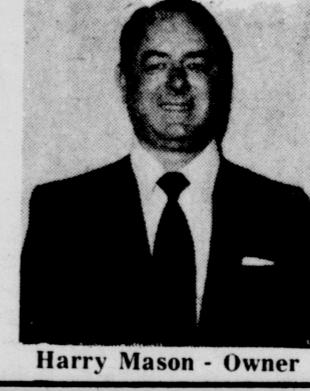

—More than 1,400 teachers continued their strikes in New Bedford and Lynn, Mass., affecting more than 20,000 pupils.

Coe, LeBeau, Cobb win honors

Trace to face tougher foe

By PHIL LEWIS

Record-Herald Sports Editor
The Miami Trace Panthers will face another Springfield team this Friday, and head coach Fred Zechman thinks his squad will have a tougher time with Greenon than they had with Northeastern last week.

"They use a power attack with their 215-pound fullback either running or blocking for the halfbacks," The Trace coach said after reviewing scouting reports on Greenon. "We think they're a better ball team than the one we played last week."

Zechman won't have to worry about Friday's encounter if the Knights from Greenon aren't a lot better than the last opponent as the Panthers completely dominated the second half to hand Northeastern a 26-0 setback last Friday.

However, Greenon has 23 lettermen buck from last season's 2-7 squad and 10 of the offensive starters are senior while nine of the defensive mainstays are seniors.

This great amount of experience and a new coach, Charles Fortner, could put some fresh ingredients in the Knights' attack and produce some headaches for the Panthers.

The Knights were nipped by Park Hills, 13-6 in the season opener because of a fourth period touchdown while rushing for 92 yards on a muddy field. They scored on a rare (for Greenon) 22-yard pass by the reserve quarterback.

Coach Fortner will use the running and blocking of Martin Minna, the 215-pound fullback, in his power offense. Minna, who also plays noseguard in the Knights 5-4 monster defense, was an all-Central Buckeye Conference selection last season as a junior.

Zechman said he is preparing for a ground oriented offense Friday and there may be a few changes in the Panther secondary as the Knights are reportedly reluctant to put the ball in the air.

Fans wishing to attend the contest should take U.S. 35 to Xenia, catch U.S. 68-North to Springfield, turn left on Fairfield Rd., then turn right on Rocky Point Rd. Greenon High School is at the end of the Rocky Point.

Zechman singled out three Panther gridironers for their work in last week's victory. Junior fullback Rex Coe was named offensive player of the week. He ran for 102 yards in 17 carries, caught three passes and threw key blocks to spring Bruce Ervin and Bill Warnock for touchdowns.

Two Panthers shared the defensive player of the week honor. Dan LeBeau, 6-0, 180-pound tackle, was mentioned for his five unassisted tackles and eight assists as he helped hold Northeastern to just 49 yards rushing. The other defensive player of the week is not a stranger to the honor. Senior captain Greg Cobb, who has won the award many times in past seasons, was singled out for his six solo tackles with two of those coming behind the line of scrimmage, four assists and one interception that set up a Panther touchdown.

Winners of Zechman's "Big Lick" awards went to Rick Saunders for his hit on the center, Bill Warnock for his tackle of the Jets' quarterback and Jeff Ruth for his hit on a Northeastern receiver.

Minnesota running back Oscar Reed now belongs to Atlanta after another draft deal; St. Louis has a draft choice for sending running back Jim Germany to Green Bay; the Saints got a pick from Baltimore for RB Howard Stevens, and Dallas sent linebacker Ker Hutcherson to San Diego for you, guessed it, an undisclosed draft choice.

Ten came the cuts. The New York Giants dropped five, as did their local rivals, the Jets. The Packers cut five, Minnesota the same, Oakland slashed four, the Cardinals and Saints three, on and on.

Chiefs. Coaches get to do it all again next Tuesday, when the final trim to 43 players is due.

Fleming, a 13-year veteran, had played in two Super Bowls with the Packers and three more with the Miami Dolphins.

Curry, an 11-year man, had played with Fleming on the Packer team that beat the Kansas City Chiefs 35-10 in Super Bowl I eight years ago.

Green ended a 13-season career that included his becoming an all-pro at strong safety and cornerback, intercepting 34 passes and once playing 182 consecutive games. He'll become a Dallas scout.

Bell asked to be placed on waivers.

There were enough bodies shifted Tuesday to stock a lot of teams for a long time. Running backs and draft choices changed hands like bargains at a bazaar.

The Chiefs acquired defensive lineman Randy Beisler and a draft choice from San Francisco in exchange for defensive back Nate Allen. The 49ers also sent cornerback Frank Oliver to the Buffalo Bills for a draft pick.

That was only the beginning. The New York Jets traded running back Mike Adamle to the Chicago Bears, receiving RB Carl Garrett and a 1976 draft.

Cincinnati swapped guard Pat Matsen to Green Bay for a future draft;

New Orleans got a mystery choice from Miami for wide receiver Melvin Baker, and the Oakland Raiders traded running back Charlie Green and wide receiver Kent Gaydos to Philadelphia for more picks.

NFL teams cut down to 46

By FRANK BROWN

AP Sports Writer

It was the Stock Exchange at midday. It was rush hour in midtown.

It was cutdown day in the National Football League.

Players retired, went on waivers, or were otherwise discarded with the rapidity of machine gun fire Tuesday as coaches frantically pared their rosters to the 46-man limit.

And some big names fell victim to old age, poor health, or the simple inability to cut the mustard.

Tight end Marv Fleming, the only player to appear in five Super Bowls, was cut by the Washington Redskins. Center Bill Curry of the Green Bay Packers retired, as did defensive back Cornell Green of the Dallas Cowboys. And veteran linebacker Bobby Bell was placed on waivers by the Kansas City Chiefs. Coaches get to do it all again next Tuesday, when the final trim to 43 players is due.

Pat Matson shrugs off quick trade

CINCINNATI (AP)—Offensive guard Pat Matson said he doesn't believe his union activity was a factor in the Cincinnati Bengals trading him to the Green Bay Packers.

If that were the case, said the muscular 10-year veteran, it would have been last year when he led the picket line in the National Football League Players Association strike.

"I wouldn't think that would be a factor now," said Matson, who said he was advised by the Packers he will move directly into a starting position for the game this week with the San Francisco 49ers.

"I want people to remember the good things I did. I don't want them to say I was a sour apple."

The Matsons will keep their home in Cincinnati, however. Matson has two body building shops in the city.

"I'm selfish. I'd like to have as many players as possible for my team," says Coach Charlie Winner of the New York Jets. "Right now I've got 19 guys who are injured in one way or another."

"In practice today, I had only one running back—Steve Davis—who could run. So we had to walk through all our plays."

"I had only five defensive backs who could run and three wide receivers, so you can see that if we were going into a league game, we'd be in a difficult situation."

Most teams in the NFL are in the same rocky boat—playing with skeleton crews while the injured skeletal heal.

Miami Coach Don Shula was a member of the committee which cut rosters from 47 to 43 because of "the economics of the sport."

"I sat in when those rules were made. After they're made, you abide by them. You can't bend the rules to fit your own particular situation," said Shula.

That's not to say he wouldn't like to. Shula was brought to the painful decision of placing linebacker Nick Buononti and safety Dick Anderson on the injured reserve list, rendering them ineligible for the entire season because of the new roster rules. Previously, a player could be placed on injured reserve and brought back before the season ended.

Padres wipe out Reds, 11-2

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson has the team with the best record in baseball, but he is worried about the National League playoffs.

If the playoffs go the full five games, the Reds will have to play the last three on the road. That bothers them because they are 60-16 at home this season, compared to 36-32 on the road.

"If we play Pittsburgh, we could be in trouble because they have so much lefthanded pitching," Anderson said Tuesday night after San Diego lefthander Rich Folkers, 6-9, stopped the Reds with a threehit 11-2.

As a result, the Reds are only 23-22 against southpaws this season, compared to 73-26 against righthanders.

"If we play the Pirates, we know we'll face Jerry Reuss, a lefthander, in the first and fifth games," Anderson said, "and he's beaten us three times this year."

Meantime, the Padres picked an opportunity time Tuesday night to come up with their highest run total of the season. They snapped an offensive slump on the eve of a two-game series here against the Atlanta Braves, who trailed them by only one game in the battle for fourth place in the Western Division.

"It means a lot to us to finish fourth," said San Diego Manager John McNamara, who has Randy Jones, 18-9, ready to face Atlanta righthander Carl Morton, 17-15, Wednesday night.

McNamara is encouraged because Will McCovery is on fire with the bat. Tuesday night, the 37-year-old first baseman drove in four runs with two singles and his 19th homer.

McCovery has driven in six runs in his last two games and 16 in the last 15. He also has five homers in 11 games and this should become the 11th season in which he has hit 20 or more homers in the majors. Last year, his first with the Padres, the big first baseman hit 22 homers and 17 came during the second half.

"I threw two fast balls by him but I tried to do it again and he really nailed it," losing Cincinnati righthander Clay Kirby, 9-6, said of the towering two-run homer McCovey hit in the fifth inning.

It's been a frustrating season for

Elsewhere in the NL, the Chicago Cubs nipped the Pirates 6-5; the Montreal Expos edged the New York Mets 2-1 in 10 innings; the San Diego Padres pounded the Cincinnati Reds 11-2; the Los Angeles Dodgers tripped the San Francisco Giants 8-3, and the Atlanta Braves beat the Houston Astros 4-1.

Cubs 6, Pirates 5
The Cubs had slowed Pittsburgh's pennant express but Chicago Manager Jim Marshall expects the derailment to be only temporary.

"The Pirates to me look about the same as they did last year," Marshall said, "and they won it last year."

Andy Thornton rapped his 15th homer, then smacked a tie-breaking single to lead Chicago past Pittsburgh. Bill Bonham and relief pitcher Paul Reuschel combined for a sevenhitter against the Pirates, who made three errors and allowed four unearned runs.

Dodgers 8, Giants 3

Lee Lacy's tie-breaking single in the eighth inning touched off a five-run rally, giving the Dodgers a victory that pulled them 6½ games ahead of the third-place Giants.

Astros 4, Braves 1

Home runs from Marty Perez, Mike Lum and Dave May of the Atlanta Braves powered rookie right-hander Adrian Devine to his first victory of the season. Devine was summoned last week from the Braves' Richmond, Va., farm club.

Expos 2, Mets 0

Jim Dwyer's single and Mike Jorgenson's run-scoring double in the 10th inning sent the faltering Mets to their fifth straight loss. The Mets, who were part of the NL East pennant race a week ago before losing two of three to the Pirates, are now nine games out.

Indians 3, Red Sox 2

Alan Ashby's run-scoring single in the 10th led Cleveland over Boston. George Hendrick doubled and eventually scored on Ashby's hit to left.

A's 2, Royals 1
Bill North's run-scoring single with two out in the 14th inning gave Oakland its big victory over Kansas City. The victory boosted the A's lead to seven games over the Royals in the American League West.

A two-out error by Kansas City shortstop Fred Patek opened the door for the A's winning rally. Bert Campaneris, who reached base on Patek's miscue, stole second and raced home with the gamewinner on North's dramatic hit.

Angels 5, White Sox 4
Mike Miley drove in two runs with a single and sacrifice fly and Bruce Bochte doubled home the eventual winning run in the seventh inning to lead California over Chicago.

Yankees 9, Tigers 6
New York first baseman Chris Chambliss became the first Yankee to wallop five hits in a game this season in the Yankee's defeat of Detroit. He singled home a run in a three-run first, doubled home one in a three-run third and capped a two-run rally in the eighth with an RBI single. In addition, Chambliss had two more singles.

Rangers 3-4, Twins 0-2
Dave Nelson's two-run single in the ninth capped a three-run rally, leading Texas over Minnesota in the second game for a sweep of their doubleheader.

Opening lead - jack of spades.

There is more to the art of guessing two-way finesse correctly than meets the eye. The best players have a knack for guessing right far more frequently than they apparently should, but it's not just plain luck that leads them to the right decision so often.

Consider this deal where the play started with three rounds of spades. Declarer ruffed and was faced with the question of whether to play a trump to the king and take a trump finesse at trick five, or whether to take a trump finesse at trick four by playing low to the ten.

Declarer "guessed" right when he played a low heart to the ten, which won. He continued with the king, played a club to the ace, and cashed his ace of trumps, East showing out. South then ran his clubs and it did not matter when West ruffed, because that would be the last trick for the defense.

Had declarer played a heart to the king and then finessed the ten, he would have gone down at least one after a fourth round of spades by West.

Now let's suppose East had held the Q-8-5-2 of trumps instead of West. In that case, East would have won dummy's ten with the queen, but he would then have found himself helpless, whatever he returned. South, in that event, would have had ten unassailable tricks.

In effect, declarer's willingness to lose the ten of trumps to East and his unwillingness to lose it to West was a safety play covering every possible 4-2 or 3-3 division of the trumps. It was not so much a question of guessing which defender held the queen; it was more a question of guaranteeing the contract against any normal division of the cards.

Injured officer to keep job

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A young detective, blinded in one eye during an antibusing riot, managed a weak smile when he learned he still has a job on the police force, despite his injury.

Michael Doughty, a 26-year-old bachelor, was one of scores of officers injured last Friday night during a brick and bottle throwing battle between police and about 10,000 antibusing demonstrators.

He was struck in the eye by a projectile hurled from a slingshot type device.

Doughty received bad news Monday that was not unexpected — all attempts to save his eye had failed.

"They just broke the word," said Russell McDaniel, 46, chief of the 400-man Jefferson County Police Department. "He is very depressed."

The news didn't come as a total shock to the young officer, who had been promoted to the detective division only recently. His physicians told him immediately after the injury there was virtually no chance to save the eye.

"He is very low, very depressed," said McDaniel, a 25-year veteran of the force. "But he is a terrific young man, and he will make it back okay."

McDaniel said he visited Doughty after doctors came in with their verdict. Doughty was concerned about his future, the chief said.

"I assured him that he would still be a policeman," McDaniel said. "He smiled, and a tear came to the eye that is not bandaged."

"He said, 'that means more to me than you will ever know,'" said McDaniel. "I told him we need him very badly."

Todd Hollenbach, the county's chief executive officer, telephoned the young officer, also to reassure him that his job is secure, McDaniel said.

"There are many jobs he can do," the chief said, declining to mention any specifically. "He's been with us about five years. He is too valuable and has too much experience, so he will have a job."

Doughty, an all-star baseball and basketball player in his high school days in Louisville, spends most of his time working with youngsters, McDaniel commented in an interview.

"He worked with youth all the time," the chief noted. "Just about all his free time he spent in Little League, managing a baseball team."

McDaniel said the riot Friday night in which Doughty was hurt "was one of the worst situations I've ever been confronted with."

Set final test for diplomas

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Pupils seeking a high school diploma here may soon be required to pass a test to determine if they are really literate after 12 years of public school.

"I hope this will help answer the people who say a high school diploma doesn't mean anything anymore," Dr. Donald Johnson, associate superintendent of the city's school system, said Monday.

Johnson said it is the first practical test of literacy in the nation. He said the local school board will be asked next week to make it a requirement for graduation.

The test is based on such practical knowledge as how to understand street signs, newspaper advertisements, Social Security applications and telephone books — the things people come in contact with in everyday living.

"We set out two years ago, at the request of the Florida legislature, to develop a test of functional literacy," Johnson said. "No one had successfully defined it until we went to a large number of people, including about 200 who are illiterate, and found out what are the essential reading skills to survival."

He said the first test devised took three hours to administer.

"That was too long," Johnson said. "We cut it to three separate tests and found we had one that was highly reliable."

What is the cause of a marked flow of saliva? When it does happen I find it uncontrollable.

Mr. E.S.E., Calif.

Dear Mr. E.:

The condition you describe is known as "ptyalism." Normally, an adult produces about two pints of saliva a day. With ptyalism, it may be as much as ten quarts a day.

Tobacco, certain drugs and metals like bismuth and mercury can be responsible for excessive salivation.

There are a number of intestinal and nervous disorders which may be a cause.

You should make a serious effort to try, by trial and error, to establish the cause.

It is possible that you will need the help and support of someone trained in this field, such as a psychologist or psychiatrist.

FCC not halting religion broadcasts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission seems unable to stop an avalanche of mail urging it not to do something it never considered doing.

The letters and postcards involving religious broadcasting total about 1.3 million, says Harry Shockro, the FCC's chief of administrative services, who oversees the mail.

But that's 600,000 more than the estimate on Aug. 1, when the commission explained in a public notice that there was never any question of banning religious broadcasting from the airwaves, as almost all the letter writers feared.

The FCC made the explanation in denying a petition for a freeze on applications by religious institutions for television or FM radio channels reserved for educational stations.

Two Los Gatos, Calif., broadcast consultants, Jeremy D. Lansman and Lorenzo W. Milam, contended that the assignment of more than one educational channel in a community to a religious group deprived minority groups of access to the scarce channels.

Their petition, filed last Dec. 5, brought the snowballing avalanche of mail and phone calls to the FCC.

The FCC, in denying it, said: "As a government agency, the commission is enjoined by the First Amendment to observe a stance of neutrality toward religion, acting neither to promote nor to inhibit religion."

The FCC pointed out that the case never did not involve religious

Residential burglaries probed

Two residential burglaries topped the list of investigations made Tuesday by Washington C.H. police and sheriff's deputies.

Police reported that someone had entered the Maxine Landrum residence, 704 Blackstone St., and removed quantity of canned goods. Officers said the entry was made through a bathroom window.

The thief apparently was in no hurry as officers reported he took time to smoke a cigarette and drink two beers. The burglary, reported Tuesday, occurred sometime Saturday afternoon.

Entry was also made into the home of Robert L. Evans, Sheley Road, sometime Tuesday afternoon. Fayette County Sheriff's deputies said a metal bar had been used to pry open the front door of the home, but nothing was reported missing.

Police also are investigating a threatening letter received by Jackie L. King, of 1112 E. Paint St. Officers said the letter was possibly the result of a domestic problem.

A 10-speed bicycle was stolen from the rear of Hidy's Food store, Columbus Ave., Tuesday. Terry Strittenberger, 1664 Dennis St., said he had left the bike there while he was working and when he returned it was gone.

Lebanese army to enter fighting

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Beirut newspapers reported the army would be ordered today to intervene in the fighting between Christians and Moslems in northern Lebanon.

Premier Rashid Karami, a Sunni Moslem, said after a cabinet session Tuesday that he would announce "efficient measures" today to end the fighting in Tripoli, Lebanon's second largest city, and Christian villages east of it.

Karami had been opposed to calling in the army because the Moslems contend the military command is dominated by Christians. But the local press said the cabinet had agreed to give the army's Maronite Christian commander, Gen. Iskandar Ghanem, a six-month leave of absence.

The cabinet was reported considering replacing Ghanem with Brig. Gen. Said Nasrallah, the chief of staff and former interior minister. He is a Druze, Lebanon's third religious sect, and thus might be considered a neutral between the Moslem and Christian combatants.

Moslem sources in Tripoli said a force of 3,000 Moslems advancing on the Christian town of Zagharta, five miles east of Tripoli, had taken the Christian villages of Erdeh, Alma and Dier Ashash. The sources said this put the Moslems' mortars within two-miles range of Zagharta.

Government security forces were reported establishing checkpoints in the rear of the Moslem militia, on roads to the Zagharta area and on the northern and southern approaches to Tripoli.

Officials said a total of 83 persons were known to have been killed and 212 wounded in the fighting, which began a week ago and escalated into full-scale warfare Sunday. But officials predicted the toll would rise as government patrols penetrated more areas of fighting.

The fighting is the fifth major outbreak this year of warfare between Lebanon's Christian and Moslem communities. Their traditional animosity has been fueled by the presence in the country of more than 200,000 Palestinian Moslems whose guerrilla operations against Israel are supported by Moslem leftists and opposed by conservative Christians.

More than 2,000 persons were killed in fighting in Beirut in April, May and June, and 34 persons were killed in August in Zahle, in eastern Lebanon.

Scattered frost was reported in a section from eastern Ohio to western New England.

Thundershows in the southwest quarter of the nation early today led to some local flooding. Motorists in west central Nevada were advised to use caution because of washouts and mud over highways. Highway 80 was partially closed about 30 miles east of Reno due to mud and water.

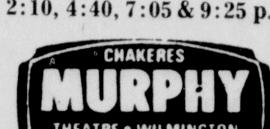

There were flash flood warnings in effect for the south portion of Inyo County, California including Death Valley. Mud slides closed all highways into Death Valley.

The southeast and the Atlantic and Gulf Coasts continued to experience thundershows. Showers and occasional thundershows pepper the upper Mississippi Valley as well and the southern half of the Rocky Mountains to the plains.
